

Gwidt "Whitewash" Charge Draws Fire From Speaker Perry

INTERVIEW IN PRESS CAUSES ROW AT RROBE

Rhineland Solon Quoted Saying Friends of Board Conduct Inquiry

Madison—(P)—The contention of Assemblyman S. J. Gwidt, Rhineland, that the special committee investigating the conservation commission was headed with "staunch allies of the conservation commission" was assailed by Speaker Charles Perry here yesterday.

The clash between Gwidt and Perry occurred immediately after the committee convened for its first hearing. Speaker Perry went into the record room, where the assemblyman Gwidt had given to the Rhinelanders.

In the article, Gwidt was quoted as saying there was little chance of anything but a "whitewash" of the commission in view of the special committee's personnel. The interview also said Gwidt doubted whether the committee could conduct a fair and impartial investigation. Speaker Perry asked Gwidt if he had authorized the statement.

"Some parts are true, while many are exaggerated," Assemblyman Gwidt replied. "The story is the result of a confidential talk I had with a reporter on the news."

"Before we are through we will probably call the reporter down here," Mr. Perry said. "I have no friends I wish to excuse from the performance of duty and no one that I want to see punished. I voted against the resolution creating this committee because it reflected statements which I knew to be untrue."

Chairman William Maute of the conservation commission, urged that the committee examine each charge against the commission separately. This resolution has done great damage to conservation work in the conservation," he said. "If it is true, the commission should get out and let some one else do the work. If it is not true, it should be disproved at once."

Matt Patterson, assistant conservation director, refuted statements that the Horton marsh dam was under water and ineffective. He presented photographs showing the dam well above water and said it had done the work expected of it. Fred Wilson, chief fish warden, said he was not qualified to state the cause of the collapse of the Lake Ada fire tower which killed one man. He said the lookouts were charged with maintenance of towers.

Kentucky Strike Region Quiet After Arrival Of Guardsmen

FIVE KILLINGS BEING PROBED BY GRAND JURY

Families Return to Homes After Flight in Fear of Outbreaks

Evarts, Ky.—(P)—With an imposing array of national guardsmen on duty here to prevent further outbreaks in the coal fields, conferences toward a permanent settlement of the difficulties went on, and at Harlan the special grand jury resumed its inquiry in the lawlessness that cost five lives.

E. B. Childers, superintendent of the Black Mountain mine near here, reported that a number of men had gone back to work. He said they were workers who had feared to go to the miners during the disorders. One report came during the night of trouble expected at the Yancey mine near Pansy in another part of Harlan-co, but deputy sheriffs, instead of soldiers went there. They reported no disorder.

Since the arrival of more than 300 troops yesterday, Evarts has been quiet. No disturbances were reported last night, and families that previously fled their homes fearing violence returned. Schools will be reopened Monday. They were closed because parents feared to send their children during the troubled times.

Col. Dan M. Carrell, commanding the guards, conferred with mine workers and operators with a view to ending definitely the disorders in the Harlan-co mining regions. He said he has had satisfactory conferences with both factions, but declined to discuss their nature. He said any announcement concerning them would come from Gov. Flen D. Sampson.

Expects Settlement
At Frankfort last night Governor Sampson said the first conference was harmonious and he looked for settlement of all differences. Colonel Carrell reported to him, he said, that his object was to provide work for the unemployed. Fullrest cooperation, he said, has been pledged by all factions.

In beginning the patrolling of Evarts, Col. Carrell explained it was solely for the protection of the community and its people from further disturbances. The troops will operate on a non-partisan and unbiased basis, he said, to aid in working out the coal field's problems.

Police Judge Bradley Burkhardt of Evarts, who has figured prominently in negotiations between the factions, explained the general situation. The mine operators, he said, were averse to recognition of the unions. The workers are opposed to the armed guards the operators have employed to protect the mines and say some miners have been discharged for union affiliations and have been refused supplies at company commissaries.

These differences led to gun battles. Two deputy sheriffs, a commissary clerk and a miner were killed just outside of Evarts Tuesday. Another deputy sheriff had previously been killed at Harlan. Several have been wounded.

Sheriff W. H. Blair of Harlan-co, when asked if he intended to disarm his deputies serving as mine guards, as the miners ask, said, "nobody is running this sheriff's department here—no one is." He said the guards are employed by the mines and given commissions as deputies.

W. B. Jones, secretary of the local union of the United Mine Workers of America, estimated today 5,000 men are out of work in the Harlan region. He said the union is at work, he said. The union planned to meet today to discuss the situation.

Conditions as to food and lodging for the unemployed were described as acute. Miners have made trips to nearby communities to collect food and other aid. Families that have moved out of company-owned homes have crowded into the lodgings of their more fortunate fellows. Jones said there were approximately 5,000 persons now living in Evarts, which has a normal population of 1,500.

Several merchants have been providing lunches for school children. There are approximately 87 mines in the Harlan region. About 35 of these were said to be working part or full time, while the remainder have closed because of the disorders or business depression. Evarts is a valley between high mountain ranges, and is surrounded by small mining communities.

Colonel Carrell said he understood the Red Cross would send a relief worker into the area as soon as the situation quieted down.

MAUTHE ARGUES TO REVAMP BILL

State Is Party to Price-fixing Scheme, He Declares at Hearing

Madison—(P)—The state of Wisconsin is a party to an uncontrolled, private price-fixing scheme, Assemblyman Carlton Mauthe, Fond du Lac, yesterday told an assembly committee hearing his bill to revamp the state fire insurance schedule.

Assemblyman Mauthe, who was a member of the interim committee appointed by the 1929 legislature to investigate the state fire insurance laws, said the present rating-law legalizes price fixing and control of the fire insurance business in Wisconsin by a private monopoly located outside the state.

"There is not adequate state control, nor even an intelligent review," Mauthe said. "The insurance commissioner admitted that the present rates are a guess and a gamble and speculation as to whether they are right or wrong."

"The sellers of fire insurance cannot be blamed if they succeed in the enactment of a law which legalizes price fixing. All business and professional men would welcome such laws. But what about the public under such a scheme?"

Assemblyman Mauthe recommended in the interim committee bill repeal of the fire insurance rating law and the enactment of a schedule of rates, fixing of a schedule of rates, charges and credits on each class of risk with the insurance commissioner by each company, approval of rates and rules of the commissioner. The measure further states that the burden of proof that rates and rules are reasonable shall rest with the insurance companies.

Other provisions of the bill are: Changes in rates and rules shall not become effective until the public is informed and, if desired, holds a hearing.

Rates and rules shall not become effective until the public is informed and, if desired, holds a hearing. After hearings and a commission decision may be subject to court review.

All daily writings of companies shall be stamped and filed for public record.

Revocation of license will follow intentional change of a different rate from that filed with the commission.

Establishment of an advisory committee to decide fair representation of municipal authorities, manufacturers, policy-holders, insurance agents, and domestic insurance companies.

ORDER CHANGES IN COAL RATES TO S. DAKOTA

Commission Ruling Decides Other Rates from Same Districts Are Fair

Washington—(P)—The Interstate Commerce commission today ordered coal freight rates revised from Wyoming and Colorado districts to certain destinations in South Dakota and at the same time found that rates from these districts to other South Dakota points were fair.

The commission held that rates on all sizes of coal from the Wyoming districts to Rapid City, Deadwood, Belle Fourche, Capa, Fort Pierre, Farmingdale, Oacoma, Oacoma and all destinations in South Dakota east of the Missouri river and from Colorado districts to Belle Fourche, Deadwood, Oacoma, Mitchell, Woonsocket, Volsey, Huron, Redfield, Milbank and Aberdeen were fair and should not be disturbed.

Rates on lump coal to a large group of destinations were found to be unreasonable insofar as they exceeded rates from the Sheridan, Walsenburg, Kirby, Hudson, Rock Springs, Cheyenne and Hanna districts in Wyoming and the northern Colorado, Canon City and Pikeview districts in Colorado.

The lake cargo coal rate cases have been before the commission from time to time since 1913, and in two other instances the rates have been upheld.

There is a difference of 35 cents a ton between rates from Ohio and Pennsylvania fields to certain Lake Erie ports and those from fields in the south. The Ohio and Pennsylvania operators attacked this difference as too small and asked that fixing any definite figure they indicated at hearings that they believed 45 cents a proper spread.

Ohio and Pennsylvania operators named the coal producers of West Virginia, southwestern Virginia and eastern Kentucky and Tennessee, as being preferred Southern operators. They denied this and Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and South Dakota railroad commissions as well as southern boards intervened.

Chapple Says Friends Try To Whitewash Commission

Ashland—(P)—John B. Chapple, managing editor of the Ashland Daily Press in a statement today charged "friends of the administration with attempting to whitewash" efforts of the Inter-county Association for Conservation to obtain forest fire prevention and suppression for northern Wisconsin counties.

"Forest fire prevention and suppression has been grossly mismanaged," said Mr. Chapple, "and Mr. William Mauthe, chairman of the state conservation commission displays poor judgment not to admit it freely and concentrate on trying to improve the present emergency instead of charging me with seeking publicity."

"Friends of the administration and the conservation commission kept me awake until after midnight the night before the legislative hearing at Madison Wednesday, pointedly suggesting there should be no criticism. Why? Because they know they deserve criticism and they heard it. This pressure from friends of the administration to turn the protest of the north into a session of white wash began even before we left Ashland, but it was hottest in the Lorraine hotel at Madison. I am perfectly willing to give the names of those who approached myself and others with these pointed suggestions."

Made No Promise
"I did not promise Mauthe or any of them I would not discuss the situation frankly, but they worked hard enough on us in an effort to make us shut up. I placed part of the blame for the fire situation on the conservation commission, but neglected to repeat a statement made at Ashland declaring Mauthe employed the venomous political catch words of those operating the political racket of Madison. I repeat that now Mauthe reveals plainly where his political sympathies are. He is right when he said I was seeking publicity—I was seeking publicity for the deplorable light in which north Wisconsin stands itself as a result of administration, legislative and commission neglect, and lack of effective action in regard to forest fires."

OLD AGE PENSIONS TO BE COMPULSORY

Law Will Not Affect Outagamie-co, as It Now Has System

The old age pensions system, which has been in effect in Outagamie-co for six years, will become compulsory on all counties in the state after July 1, 1933, under the terms of a bill passed by the state assembly yesterday. The measure was introduced by Cecil J. Schmieg, Appleton, assemblyman from the first Outagamie-co district.

Administration of the system is transferred by the bill to the county court, from the state board of control, and county boards may require towns, cities and villages to make reimbursements for old age pensions. Under the present law the state pays one-third of the cost of the old age pension system.

There now are nine counties in the state which have adopted the old age pension system, according to County Judge Fred V. Heinemann. Judge Heinemann administers the system in Outagamie-co, which has had it in effect for six years. Outagamie-co was the first county in the state to adopt the system and the success of the plan here has been held up as a model all over the United States.

LAND TAX BILL IS BACKED BY BRITISH HOUSE

Resolution Expected to Become Law With Support of Liberals

London—(AP)—The house of commons was on record Thursday as approving Chancellor Philip Snowden's land tax resolution but will determine by a series of parliamentary steps whether it becomes law.

The resolution providing for a levy of a penny a pound on land values, starting in 1933, was adopted by a vote of 289 to 230 last night. Former Prime Minister David Lloyd George swung the Liberal strength behind the plan.

The measure is now in the "report stage" during which amendments will be considered and proposals discussed for the framing of the completed bill. After this, the completed bill will be brought up for first reading.

The Conservatives plan to submit an amendment excluding from the valuation of land affected by the bill any value that may be due to improvements made by the owner or his predecessors. Some of their leaders expect to argue in behalf of this move but the general expectation is that the government will again triumph with Liberal help.

Neither in Conservative ranks nor in the party press has any strong opposition to the measure been expressed yet but this is likely to ensue when the text is available. Indications are that one of the main lines of attack will be on the ground of public economy, critics having declared that the plan is extravagant.

Although the proposed tax, aimed particularly at large landowners, is expected to become a highly controversial issue between Conservatives and Laborites and between lords and commons, it was approved with few fireworks.

Mrs. Lloyd George was frank in his support of the plan. "The case for the taxation of land values is overwhelming," he said. He scoffed at the idea that the bill meant the nationalization of land.

"A penny in a pound is going to be a slow progress of nationalization," he said.

Replying to an inaudible comment by Lady Astor, he said:

"I assure the honorable lady on my word of honor that I haven't seen the bill."

OLD SIZE CURRENCY BECOMES EXTINCT

Bankers Marvel Over Rapid Disappearance of Large Green Backs

Appleton bankers are marveling at the rapidity with which the new style smaller currency has replaced the old large type of green backs and yellowbacks.

When the treasury department issued its first consignments of small size currency, there was a general belief that the change would be accomplished slowly, and that it would be years before the last of the old size currency was removed from circulation.

The transition is almost complete, bankers say, except for the bills which have been hoarded away by individuals as souvenirs of a former day. Bankers here assert that less than $20 a day of the old currency is taken in.

For several months now, even the new type bills have been taken out of circulation due to being worn out, it is stated. Bank tellers have been required to collect frayed or torn bills, for return to the treasury department. Many of the small size bills have been collected in Appleton in that manner, it is stated.

THE WEAK ONE

Some of the investigations which have been carried on by senate committees have exposed conditions in various departments of the federal government imperatively demanding correction.

Others have petered out into farces. Almost invariably the result is attributable to the men in whose hands is put the power of investigation, a fact proving the impelling necessity of sending to congress able men.

We have had such investigations under the directing hand of men like Senator Reed of Missouri, Senator Walsh of Montana and Senator Borah of Idaho.

They were successful because their directors sought the truth, spoke it, knew it when they found it, and earned from their dependability in dealing with facts, public confidence.

The present investigation being conducted by Senator Blaine takes on all the colors of a personal attempt to attract notoriety, not by carefully digging out facts but by making wild and flamboyant charges which the true facts immediately flatten, a condition that suggests that the good faith of the committee would more likely, upon examination, reveal a presence of the characteristics which it is so quick to denounce in others; or being unable to find, constructs.

Mr. Blaine makes many charges but is particularly weak in substantiating them.

In regard to a change of site for a postoffice at Chicago he charges that the postoffice department "slipped it over on congress, coming in about two hours before noon on the last day of the session and asking that these specific items of millions be placed in the budget."

Postmaster-General Brown in a public statement has shown that it was not the postoffice department but the treasury department that sought the change and that instead of submitting it to congress "two hours before noon on the last day of the session," it was submitted seven weeks prior to that time. Mr. Brown says that Mr. Blaine's statement "is an unmitigated falsehood."

The people cannot know whether the senatorial committee might be able to expose facts that should be given to the public. It is too bad that the conduct of such an examination was put into the hands of a man who is unable to handle it.

A man cannot be made into a senator by a mere certificate of election any more than a Plymouth Rock can, by the same means, become qualified to fly with the eagles.

SNOWDEN OF ENGLAND

Chancellor Snowden of England is a Socialist. By the Conservatives he was considered a rank radical and a man dangerous to invested interests.

His small, insignificant body has undergone physical torture, a condition conducive to pessimism, yet events have proved the spirit of the man to be an unquenchable flame. With gloom as thick as London's fogs pervading the British industrial mind, he hobbles into the house of commons, presents his budget with cherry optimism for Britain's future, and by unexpected financial legerdemain changes a budgetary deficit of 186 million dollars into a surplus of $670,000.

These fiscal acrobatics are accomplished without any additional impost on industry. He raises the present tax on gasoline from eight to twelve cents. This will produce $37,500,000. Income taxes are payable one-half in January and the balance in July. He requires that 75 per cent be paid next January which will bring into the treasury another fifty million before the end of the fiscal year in April, 1932.

Then he withdraws from the United States one hundred million dollars from an account maintained to purchase exchange at favorable rates for debt payments.

chase exchange at favorable rates for debt payments.

The advance in income tax payments and the withdrawal of funds from New York are made in anticipation of an improvement in business before the next period of accounting rolls around. He dips into his reserve to help out in a period of depression—a plan industry often considers as good business.

His spirit of optimism that the future will take care of itself is a ray of sunshine bursting through overcast skies. He throws no sop to his own radical supporters, but stands fast for sound financial action in a bad time, and becomes one of the most popular men in England.

BEER TAXES

Despite heavy inroads made by the wets at the last election, Michigan is still classed as a fairly dry or at least, close state.

That is what makes the more peculiar the passage of an act by its legislature placing a tax on malt syrups, extracts and wort, as well as licensing dealers who handle such products.

The legislature knows that wort is quickly and easily turned into old time beer and is made for that purpose alone, and that the malt extracts and syrups being so widely sold could find few purchasers except for that purpose.

Here then we wander some more among twisting illusions, one law taxing the package that goes in at the front door and another law fining the man who comes out with foam on his lip.

The state that can be guilty of such double dealing is a plain enough dissembler, yet it furnishes another bit to the staggering pile of evidence that pretense is the handmaiden of prohibition.

The official who collects the tax on the wort should have a constable's star under his coat, and, after delivery of the article, make the arrest.

Wherein is such state any different than he into whose mouth the playwright put the lines:

"Why, I can smile and murder while I smile;

And cry content to that which grieves my heart;

And wet my cheeks with artificial tears,

And frame my face to all occasions."

For several centuries the quotation was supposed to express the utmost of deceit and duplicity, and millions of moral and honest-minded folks wondered that men could be so evil as to feign sweet virtue in order to practice revolting crime.

Michigan appears to need the income from this source badly but can remain consistent only by repealing its enforcement law.

TELEVISION'S PREMIERE

Television stepped out before the footlights in its New York premiere recently, and those who saw it thanked God for small things and the promise of bigger ones.

A human race live in an age of magic losses its power of astonishment and is struck only with mild wonder on seeing a thing which ten years ago would have seemed impossible. The thrill of this thing belonged mainly to the many theatrical and operatic entertainers and others with prominent names who followed one another, in a crowd, to the broadcasting studio, before brilliant photographic rays which raked their faces. They were as naively eager and uncertain of themselves when confronted with this new thing as school children.

Modern imagination is keyed to such an ambitious scale that the images and voices appearing on machines two blocks away were at first disappointing. It is an image the size of a dollar had been expected the actuality might have burst upon the eye with great and gratifying surprise. But the televised people, appearing only from a short distance and by those exactly in front of the machine.

Yet what the performance lacked in the present it promised for the future. The first glimpse into the machine, saw the person talking or singing there, but they visioned behind that person the prodigious television which is as certain to come as the next season—television as true as life, with three dimensions and color.

Already television in the laboratories is several months ahead of performance. Pictures eight feet by eight have been developed in Chicago. Until the wider canvases are available to the general public, spectators might help matters by viewing the pictures through a telescope!—New York World-Telegram.

WHAT IS HOSTILITY TO THE CONSTITUTION?

The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals argues that the representation of cities in the National and in the State Legislature ought to be held down, notwithstanding their population gains, until they have shown greater ability to govern themselves.

Says the Board: "The question arises whether or not hostility to the United States Constitution on the part of a controlling majority in New York, Chicago and other cities, together with scandalous conditions in judicial and executive administration, do not warrant objection to increased participation of the city in state and Federal legislation and administration."

It is true that a great many cities have a majority hostile to the Eighteenth Amendment, which reiterates a principle contained in the original Constitution. This amendment says: "Representatives shall be apportioned among the several states according to their respective numbers."

Can it be that hostility to the Eighteenth Amendment is hostility to the Constitution, while hostility to the Fourteenth Amendment is not?—Detroit News.

Spring, sweet spring
Is here all right,
My kitchen pipes
Froze up last night!

The lady from Brooklyn who is the world's fastest typist, is sailing for Europe to teach the folks over there how to punch a keyboard.

Well, we have a general idea of the typewriter keyboard, and in our own simple little fashion, we manage to get along. It isn't HOW to write that bothers us so much, it's WHAT to say.

Ogosh, ogosh. It's been raining quite a bit lately and if we get more rain that means that the crops will grow this year and then we'll have another agricultural surplus and the farmer will need more relief than ever.

And don't try to read that last sentence aloud in one breath. You'll need relief, too.

Divorce decrees in Russia are as easy to get as marriage licenses. At least the Russians have established a reasonable sort of balance in the affair.

It's along about this time that baseball fans begin to wonder what has happened to all of the sensational young rookies who were going to burn up the big leagues this year.

And when all of us have forgotten that we took solemn vows to play good golf this year and that we would stop slicing and hooking and lay into our shots and make 'em go straight. Oh well.

THE CONVICT

He sat within the dock and stared
As if he neither knew or cared
What words were said; nor truth nor lie
Could cause the flicker of his eye.
Unmoved he seemed as are the dead
By what his fellow creatures said.

I watched him through the days that passed
And heard him sentenced at the last,
And saw him turn upon his heel;
And stretch his wrists to take the steel;
But still indifferent was he
To all that living people see.

Some ten years later walking by
His prison cell I caught his eye
And stopped to talk; his pale gray face
Of joy or sorrow showed no trace.
The Convict for life, the hours dragged by Nor mattered fair or stormy sky.

"Indifferent still," said I, and he Looked calmly toward the bars at me.
And slowly spoke: "Yes! I friend and foe,
The seasons as they come and go,
Are nothing now. This bitter bed
Is just the same as being dead."

STRYCHNINE THE CHILD POISON

In various myths, legends or ancient religions the sacrifice of a child was demanded.

In Yankeland the prevailing religion still demands this sacrifice. About once a week somewhere in the United States an innocent young child, usually the child of poor, ignorant parents, is sacrificed in order that BIG BUSINESS may go on as usual. I refer to the "accidental" poisoning of children with strychnine.

We dollar-worshipping Americans are fond of fine language. Nothing pleases our vanity so much as to be told by a professional orator or statesman how great is our concern for the welfare of children, not merely our own children but the cunning little things everywhere, even the miserable offspring of our lower caste working people. How we applaud their words and how we babble about the importance of the welfare of children, not merely our own children but the cunning little things everywhere, even the miserable offspring of our lower caste working people.

main their fertility. For your purpose, which I suppose are to break the physic habit or possibly to prepare foolproof cough medicine, I should think a moderate baking in the oven would destroy any worm or insect egg in the seed.

Iodin as Disinfectant

I wish you would print instructions for the use of Iodin. Recently our cat scratched and bit my arm. I ran in the house and put hot water on it and Iodin several times. When I went to bed I put on a bandage. By the next day I had to call the doctor to treat the swelling and burn from the Iodin. (Mrs. E. M.)

Answer—It is better to avoid water or other liquid or saliva and swab or touch the raw wound once only with the tincture of Iodin. Then do not repeat the Iodin. Even the unbroken skin is likely to be irritated and burned if you apply a second coat of Iodin within several days.

Diathermy

I owe to your column the new lease on life I am enjoying. The doctors agreed the source of the poisoning was my tonsils but owing to my bad heart, nothing could be done. I was about resigned to the life of a cripple when you told of the advantages of diathermy. . . . so I wrote you and you recommended Dr. . . . I had to be carried in and out of his office the first two times. Now I am walking about, gaining every day, and my arthritis is certainly cured. I wouldn't mind the inability of my doctors to do anything, but I do resent their intolerance in condemning this new treatment as worthless and dangerous. (D. H. A.)

Answer—No doctor who knows what diathermy is will condemn it. Your doctors just didn't know about it. They'll learn in time. (Copyright, John F. Dille Co.)

A Bystander In Washington

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Thy're still looking for a man around Uncle Sam's treasury in Washington to take the place of Joseph McCoy, who died recently.

The job that McCoy filled was not one that projected him personally into the public eye. He was known by few outside the treasury. But his work vitally affected untold numbers.

Probably you are familiar with it. Did you ever read in the papers a story under a Washington date line that began, "The treasury estimates that . . ." and in subsequent paragraphs gave the financial outlook of the country?

That story was based upon the work of McCoy, who until his death was the treasury's actuary and chief prognosticator of America's finances. Of course, the work still is going on. Understudies and various others in the treasury are doing the figuring until a successor to McCoy can be found.

A Careful Man

But care must be exercised in the selection of a new actuary. That was McCoy's great quality—he was one of the most careful men in Washington.

Upon the calculations of the actuary Secretary Mellon relies as his chief guide in announcing financial prospects.

The actuary is one of three who engage in this sort of work. His figures go to Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills, where they are compared with those of Robert G. Hand, commissioner of accounts and deposits, and W. R. Stark in the section of financial and economic research.

From the three the secretary and undersecretary prepare their forecasts.

How the actuary goes about his work is pretty much his own secret.

His Work Counts

He must figure out how much Uncle Sam can expect from sources like income taxes. He must speculate on how much tobacco will be consumed. He must take into consideration how many rich men will die and leave large estates.

Sometimes he is made out as a worthless prophet. The question of his accuracy often furnishes a rare morsel for debate in congress. When he talks of surplus and deficit great interest is aroused. Such figures make excellent material for political stump speeches during campaigns.

But when he errs, more than likely it is on the side of caution—that is, over for deficit, under for surplus.

BATTLE AT LENS

On May 8, 1917, the Germans launched a violent counter-attack against the British line near Lens. This struggle was part of the great Battle of Arras which lasted nearly a month.

Philip Gibbs, war correspondent, colorfully describes the fighting here as follows: "I watched this battle of guns from the old trenches looking across to Lens and giving a wide sweep of the battle front from the field of Loos to the ground below the sloping shoulder of Vimy Ridge."

"This ground was the storm center of the world's war last night just after dark, and before the coming of the moon, lights rose from the trenches beneath them were illuminated with sharp white lights. One remained hanging high over Lens like a great star."

"All through the night the battle of the guns went on and the sky was filled with the rush of shells and the moon veiled his face from this horror which made hell on earth. But in the little wood a nightingale sang all through the night."

New York—Carlo was the most enthusiastic musician anybody at the party had ever seen.

It was a studio party, and Carlo played for the dancing. After everybody had danced off the floor, exhausted, he played on. There was no intermission for him.

2 MEN KILLED IN MISSISSIPPI RUM WARFARE

Federal Officers Rounding Up Scores in Liquor Smuggling Syndicate

Jackson, Miss.—(AP)—The death toll in a week of rum warfare in Mississippi stood at two today while federal officers in this state, Louisiana and Michigan were rounding up three or four score persons indicted her as the aftermath of a million dollar airplane-boat-rail-motor liquor smuggling syndicate recently uncovered in New Orleans.

Wales Land, 27, was shot to death by three federal raiders on his farm in northeast Mississippi yesterday for allegedly resisting arrest. Last week federal agent H. L. Verett was slain from ambush in the northern part of the state.

The officers said Land was killed in a field. They carried his body to his home and left it, made a brief report to the sheriff, and went to Aberdeen, carrying with them a small group of persons they had arrested. A score of men are already under arrest in connection with the big syndicate through which Canadian distilleries are alleged to have cleared large quantities of liquor through the Gulf of Mexico to inland points. Others being sought, it was indicated, may run the total to a hundred.

Among those indicted for conspiracy in airplane bootleg operations are James W. Kukla, of Muskegon, Mich., and Jack Vinkelmulder, alias Jack Miller of Grand Rapids, Mich., arrested last November when a plane which was carrying liquor made a forced landing in Mississippi. The indictments were returned here secretly Wednesday.

Federal agents today were seeking two other persons in Michigan on fugitive warrants and at least three in New Orleans for the same venture.

SHIPPERS HERALD NEW RAIL SERVICE

The new "door to door" freight service recently inaugurated by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad company is meeting considerable favor with Appleton shippers, according to railroad officials. The service has been started in other cities in the state during the past few weeks. Under the new service freight is received at the Northwestern depot until 5:30 in the afternoon. The cost of the dray "pick up" is 7 cents per hundred pounds, with a 25 cent minimum charge, according to W. B. Basing, Appleton agent.

The Bushey Transfer Co. has been engaged by the railroad company to conduct the "pick up" service, but shippers can select their own dray if they choose, Mr. Basing stated.

The service has been launched to speed up freight deliveries, he says. Special freight trains have been added which make through trips to and from Milwaukee and Chicago.

Who's Who On The Appleton-Post-Crescent

Number 53

(This is the fifty-third of a series of articles about members of the staff of the Appleton Post-Crescent. The articles will seek to acquaint readers of this newspaper with those persons as individuals and also will discuss the nature of their work. Members of the staff are presented in the order of their length of service. The fifty-fourth article will appear tomorrow.)

This senior in Appleton high school, Howard Rehfeldt, has worked for the Appleton Post-Crescent for six years, starting out as a newsboy when he was in grade school.

Howard liked the "shop" and soon was helping distribute the papers to the newsboys. From this he worked into a regular afternoon job from 3 o'clock until 5:30. He takes the papers off the press as they fall in hundreds of fifties and piles them on trucks that are rolled to the mailing room. He also wraps single papers for the mail edition.

Born in Appleton, Howard went to school here. He attended Franklin grade school, Roosevelt high school, and is a senior in Appleton high school. He is taking a general course in school, which includes economics, physics, English and art. Howard spends all of his leisure playing softball. He is a catcher on the Vagabond city team in the Y. M. C. A. league and is formerly played with the Sixth ward Tigers. Howard likes to fish for a second best sport.

Special Drainage System Insures Dry Cellar At P. O.

The extreme caution which the United States government exercised to insure a dry cellar in the new post office, under construction at the corner of N. Superior and W. Washington-sts., was explained today by William Cooke, federal engineer, in charge of inspection work at the post office.

All the usual cautions for proper drainage for the basement were taken, Mr. Cooke explained, but in addition the government provided in its contract that an outside drainage system must be installed to carry off any additional surface water which might soak into the ground along the foundations of the building.

This precaution was taken, he said, to prevent this water from seeping through the walls. First, the contractor was obliged, Mr. Cooke said, to treat the outside surface of the foundation walls, with a coat of cement and three coats of pitch. Over this was placed a cement covering as an added protection. This material was expected to prevent any seepage. The drainage system, consisting of a pipe line completely around the foundation, is sunk to a level from nine to ten feet below the ground. At no point is the pipe line above the basement floor.

The pipe is laid on a foundation of small rock. A distance of about an inch is left between the pipes, and this opening is covered with copper cloth, to prevent the entrance of small stones or gravel. Above the pipe line the trench is filled with large crushed rock to a point about 20 inches below the surface of the ground. This is done to make seepage of surface water to the pipe line, still easier. The last 20 inches are filled with soil.

This precautionary measure, Mr. Cooke said, cost less than $1,000 and yet it is a protection that is warranted for a building which will cost about $150,000.

Missionary To Africa Talks Here

HER experiences as a medical missionary in German East Africa, especially during the three and one-half years during the World War when she was held a prisoner of war by the British, were described by Dr. Mina Malek of Chicago in two addresses at the district meeting of Women's Foreign Missionary societies at the Methodist church Thursday.

Dr. Malek told how she and her husband, both medical missionaries in Africa, were made prisoners of war when the World War broke out, and kept in separate prison camps for three and one-half years. Neither knew where the other was, and after their release at the end of the war Mrs. Malek was sent back to the United States and Mr. Malek to England. Eventually they discovered each other's whereabouts, and Mr. Malek joined his wife and son.

At the time Mrs. Malek entered the prison camp, her son was 23 years old. During the entire 3½ years the child had no milk and only limited rations, and at the age of six years, when the Maleks were released, he weighed only 25 pounds. Dr. Malek explained how she analyzed the leaves on trees, and boiled the ones which were not poisonous to provide some kind of fresh greens for her son.

Despite the fact that her son will never be healthy because of the malnutrition during this period, Mrs. Malek feels that her years in Africa were worthwhile, and she and her husband are attempting to save enough money to return to the interior of the dark continent. During her imprisonment Mrs. Malek spent her time teaching the Bible to the 3,000 or more prisoners in the camp, and after the war was over 100 of the prisoners were baptized.

At the afternoon meeting Mrs. O. C. Cannon, district president, assisted by the Misses Margaret Briggs, Roberta Burns, and Esther Movel, built an arch representing the projects of the missionary society. Mrs. C. O. Hultberg, accompanied by Mrs. M. O. Fenton, sang a number of selections. Mrs. Cannon presided at the meeting, which was attended by about 75 women from Appleton, New London, Clintonville, Neenah, Menasha and Kaukauna. Mrs. S. Naylor was general chairman of the affair.

Dr. Malek talked at Memorial chapel Friday morning, and Sunday evening will give an address at the Neenah Methodist church.

Teaching At Home Should Be Careful

BY ANGELO PATRI

It sometimes happens that a child is to be taught at home. The mother is usually the teacher. The first subject is reading. The second one numbers. The question rises as to how the teaching is to be done? If it is well-done it helps the child tremendously. If done, it hinders him in greater proportion.

It is best to begin with reading and let the number lessons wait. If a child wants to count help him to do so, but tables can wait a while. At least until reading is well on its way to accomplishment.

Now about reading. We do not teach children their letters any more. Not as the first step. They will learn the letters, but afterward. Not in the beginning. We start with a story. We tell the story. We tell it exactly as it is in the book. Word for word. Then we read that story and let the child look on while we read it. After that we begin the process of teaching reading. Not a very complicated process, but a careful one, if we would make a good reader of the new pupil.

The first thing to do when a child is to be taught at home is to get in touch with the school. Why? He is to go later on in his career. Not to teach a child one method of reading, and the school another, the child falls between the two stools. If you use one set of readers and the school another, the child is at a loss again. So get in touch with the teacher who teaches the beginners. Get the book she uses. Get the manual she follows. Get her interest in your pupil. Get her to let you watch her teach the class to read. Then get her to come in once in a while and observe your pupil read. Her advice and cooperation are precious to the progress of the child.

It is hard on a child who has been brought up on The Little Red Hen to be faced with a reader whose hero is The Goat My Father Bought. Either "Goat" or "Hen" will do. Which one does the school to which the child will go, use? Use it and save the child time and discouragement.

If the child is under six years of age, and he can enter school at the age of six, why teach him to read at home? Much better to leave the reading to the teacher. The child learns to read much easier after he is six, than before. He learns easier in school than at home. It is not wise to try to get ahead of the school. The child who knows the reading lessons, yet must sit in class while they are being taught, is at a great disadvantage. He finds nothing to interest him. He gets into poor habits.

During the first five years he learns to name things. To talk. To tell his name, address, and telephone call. His father's name. To recognize seven primary colors. To ride his wheel, or tend her doll. To recite nursery rhymes. To have good manners. To practice health habits. To get along with other children. To cooperate with other people in the home—helping them and learning to adjust himself to them. That is plenty for a small child to do.

The child who cannot go to school during his sixth year ought to be taught to read and tell stories at home. And that should be done in cooperation with the school and the teacher.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 by NEA Service, Inc.

TED was watching her closely. Sarah knew that, as she swayed in the air. After all, it wasn't very far down. This wasn't a circus tent, just the ballroom of the old house where she lived with other people who tried to make two rooms into a house. But for all the comfort that such thoughts brought, Sarah might have been swaying above the sawdust rings with the blare of a band in her ears and the tramping of the elephants far down. She was going to fall!

She closed her hands and grasped the ropes tighter. "Sarah, snap out of it," she told herself. "You are perfectly all right. You can't fall. You..."

"Steady there, Sarah. Swing out, I'll catch the rope." That was Ted's voice, calling her back from some dizzy height. Of course she was all right. How silly to have imagined that she wasn't. But she couldn't swing out. Not now or ever. She was afraid.

"Scared, Sarah? Why you are hardly up in the air at all!"

With a superhuman urge, still with closed eyes, Sarah threw the force of her body toward the balcony where Ted watched. She felt herself moving, slowly at first, then gaining speed. She swung back, and opened her eyes as she did so. She realized that she must keep them open now, if she would judge her distances. She didn't quite reach the balcony. For the third time she started on the journey across the space that intervened.

Ted caught the rope. She could feel him pulling up the swing. Then his hands were pulling her to safety. She reached for the railing of the balcony with one hand, and then she was being lifted across. There was firm floor beneath her feet. The swing went swaying back to its position in the center of the room.

"She did that for a dramatic effect," Barbara said in a low tone, so pitched that it ran around the room and spoke to everybody. "I was scared! I did it because I was scared!"

Sarah's tone was low but it was pitched differently. It was just for Ted. But Joan, who had climbed the steps, heard.

"Scared? Of that silly little stunt? The ideal I'm not. I think I'll try swinging near the rafters, too. Where's the ladder?"

"Oh, don't!" Sarah was honest in her attempt to stop Joan. "It isn't as much fun as it looks. You'll be much happier down here."

After all, Joan loved Ted. Or had loved him once. Lately she had wondered if she still did. At least she was engaged to him. And whether she was or wasn't didn't matter. Mental suffering, of course, was the worst kind of pain, but physical fear now and then, was a close second.

"I'm going to try your stunt!" Joan's voice was clear and decided. "And I'm going to try it now! And if I fall, all right!"

Sarah sat down on the top step of the stairway leading to the alcove. She was trembling and nervous. She wanted to get away from the gaiety that she had forced. It had lost its thrill, its glamor. She looked up at the girl who sat quietly in the swing. Joan wasn't going to turn somersaults. She was just going to prove that it was safe to sit there. Then Sarah caught her breath and her dark eyes widened. Very slowly the thick rope was breaking at one side.

MY NEIGHBOR Says —

Pork, unlike beef and lamb, must be well done. It is best to allow about 30 minutes per pound for roasting pork.

Always wrap table or bed linen which is to be stored away in dark blue paper to keep it from turning yellow.

When a small amount of cake is eaten at a time, cut the slices from center of cake. Push the two remaining pieces close together like a whole cake, and this will keep it moist and soft for several days.

To polish a table that has become spotted by hot dishes, apply a few drops of essence of peppermint with a clean cloth and rub briskly.

A teaspoon of vinegar added to the water in which fish is boiled will help to make it firm and white.

Care must be taken to avoid opening the oven door for five minutes after the cake has been placed in the oven. When removing it or drawing it to the front to see if it

TRY TO MATCH YOUR MAKE-UP AND FROCKS

BY ALICIA HART

If you haven't a definite color scheme worked out for your face, look to your new spring frocks for your cure.

Their colors should make a difference in the tone and amount of coloring your face sports. Unless, as I suggested before, you are a type who knows just what and how much to color up to your hair or eyes.

Black, you probably know, needs vastly more coloring in the face than even dark blue does. It seems to absorb the color, and when you are made up for black, it can do wonders for you.

Navy blue takes quite a bit of coloring, but the new Skipper's blue takes next to none. Someway or other this valiant new blue brings out the complementary red in your skin and you not only need less in amount but you need less red in your rouge and makeup. Therefore, use a lighter tone than you do for blue or black.

There are many new delicate tones, the new opalescent greens and yellows which give a glamorous tint to your face, if you can discover the exact shade of rouge that complements them. It is apt to be softer and less orange than your ordinary rouge. It is worth experimenting into.

With brown so very popular this year, you will need a lot of rouge and lipstick to carry it well. More than you need for navy blue. Less than black. But it should have an orange tone to it, if possible, unless it happens to be that cedar brown that is almost red.

If you happen to look very, very lovely in white don't overdo on the makeup. The minute you get too set a make-up on, too much rouge, it makes you look almost too brittle and sophisticated for white.

The pastels are in the same category with white. They call for delicacy, for a suave, easy touch on the make-up. Try your best to look natural and don't mind it if you look a little less hale and hearty than you really are. Delicate ladies can have quite a vogue, you know. They do so call out the chivalry in men. And even today's men have some grains of it left!

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

Dear Virginia Vane: All my life I have worked to help make my husband a success, and by dint of our working together he is now in a fairly comfortable position, although I still have to sacrifice many things in order to help him build up his business. And it is more important for him to look well than for me to dress as I should like to.

Now for some time I have been aware that he is making a fool of himself over a young teacher. He talks about her all the time, is constantly making excuses to go and see her. I have no way of combating this. I have threatened and pleaded with him all in vain. He says he would like to go away and leave me. Several times I have followed him when he has gone to see her, and while I have not made a scene, I have insisted on his coming back home with me. But nothing does any good. Do you think I really care for her? I would leave him but for my children. What can I do?

DISTRESSED.

Leave him alone—and at the same time stop making all the sacrifices necessary to make him an attractive, presentable looking man—and leave yourself a shabby dowdy middle-aged woman.

Of course it's cruelly unfair that the results of all your work and worry and sacrifice should be his attachment to another woman, but now that you know the truth and can face it, don't make matters worse by driving him away from you forever with reproaches and threats and accusations.

You aren't going to accomplish anything by setting yourself up as a private detective. And since your husband seems to be fairly frank about his infatuation, detective work is not really necessary. You're only inviting ugly scenes when you attempt to check up on him.

Make up your mind to be firm about your own rights. You have a right to a certain part of his income and you can use some of it to make yourself more attractive. Maybe you haven't the faintest idea how much you've let yourself go in your effort to help your man. Maybe you don't know how utterly desirable the other girl is, in comparison with yourself. Maybe you can't understand that the unreasonable male will turn away often from the woman who has helped to make him a success because in making that success, she has neglected herself, forgotten how to be attractive.

There are hundreds of more like you in the world who find their long struggle rewarded by ingratitude. Some of them are just beginning to make the mistake you have discovered in yourself. And it would be well for them to read your letter, and to understand that they must not give themselves up wholly for the sake of a business, or a career.

So long as two young people work together for the man's success, there is love and understanding and sympathy. But the woman falls behind when the man has done his job of work and has a chance to meet a new sort of people, and to make new contacts.

She has neglected herself all these years, and is no longer attractive. Occupied entirely with running a household on the smallest income possible, she hasn't kept herself interesting. It's been impossible. So that when the time comes for her to enjoy the fruits of success, she isn't fitted to enjoy them. She is tired, old, very often dull with too much preoccupation over the everyday worries of life. And at this time she very often loses the husband who ought to stand by her through sheer gratitude.

Therefore I advise the young wife not to be too selfish. She must insist on small pleasures, somehow of keeping up her outside interests, however small. She must not give herself up for the sake of another human being—even her husband.

M. T. may learn this lesson too late. But certainly she must even at this late date, claim some something for herself—insist that she be treated as a woman—a woman who loves clothes and pleasures and amusements as well as anyone else. She will gain nothing by eternal nagging about the other girl. But she can at least keep her self-respect by insisting on her own rights.

nobody," but that he started "killing cops" because "it was about the only sensation left."

"Sure I killed Hirsch," he said. "I took his own gun and used it in standing off our guys last night."

Dummler told of slaying Virginia Brannan.

"I used Crowley's gun," he said. "I was sore at her."

The apartment which became the battleground for the capture of the thugs and the 16-year-old Walsh girl is in W. 90-st., near Riverside drive—a respectable neighborhood.

The detectives in a restaurant learned yesterday noon that the apartment—on the top floor at 90 W. 90-st. had been used by Crowley as a hideout. They went there and found a note on the wall in the hallway addressed to "Murray and Red." It read: "I've gone out to do some shopping."

Additional police were called and planted in an apartment adjoining Crowley's. A squeaking floorboard alarmed Crowley and his companions and they began shooting through the walls.

Thus began a siege and fight such as never Manhattan never had seen. Every means of escape was cut off. Fire escapes, hallways and windows. Police details went to the roof, chopping hole in it. Volleys of shots poured up at them as their axes smashed openings, but no officers were hit.

Crowley stood below, guns blazing from each hand. When he was arrested a pistol was found strapped to his waist, another to his ankle. Dummler, a 200-pound truckman, fought off the police with one weapon. The Walsh girl stood with them, calling hysterical encouragement.

As police chopped the first hole over the bedroom, the youths retreated to the living room. Another hole was opened over them. They retreated to the kitchen. When another hole was made, Crowley called out that he would "give up."

But it was not all shooting that went on in that apartment as police bombarded it and an excited throng watched from behind police lines. The Walsh girl and even Crowley had time to write notes. They believed, apparently, that they were to die under the bombardment.

One of the girl's notes stressed the fact that she was born on the thirteenth.

District Attorney Edwards of Nassau-co, where Policeman Hirsch was killed, expected to ask an indictment against the girl as an accomplice in the killing. Dummler faced arraignment in the Bronx for the Virginia Brannan murder.

LITTLE CHANGE APPARENT IN U. S. INDUSTRY

Several Basic Lines Show Improvement During 10-day Period

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1931, By Post Pub. Co.
Washington—(CPA)—Although security markets are erratic, latest information derived from official sources here indicates that general business conditions have shown relatively little change one way or the other in the last ten days. In fact several basic industries continued to show improvement, but these favorable developments are not likely to be reflected immediately in security prices because the latter are now more or less retrospective, being based upon what has happened rather than what is going to happen.

Electric power production has again turned upward, the only sectional decrease being in the central industrial area.

In the textile industry, notwithstanding the seasonal slackness, the production of cotton is continuing its recent gains.

Carloadings are up again even above the seasonal increase. Among the unfavorable factors are the delays in building pipelines and other steel-consuming projects. The awards of contracts for structural steel are the smallest since the end of January and reflect the poor showing of construction contracts during the first three weeks of April.

Blame Bond Market
Undoubtedly the poor bond market has tended to postpone much construction that has to be financed through the issue of bonds. It may be that the latest action of the federal reserve system in making the credit structure more elastic will have a beneficial influence on the bond market, because there are large sums of money available for investment which have not been invested because the bond market has not been sufficiently strong to attract investors.

The government data up to last Monday shows that there has been relative dullness in the retail trade. Sales of agricultural implements are spotty but on the upgrade in many territories. The passenger car output is showing increase in the low and medium priced fields, with a small increase in the output of trucks.

The electrical industry shows a somewhat better tone. The output of steel is fairly steady and the figures now show that the orders for both fabricated structural steel and commercial steel castings were larger in March than in February.

Lumber Orders Resumed
The lumber market shows that orders have been resumed, though there is a temporary slump in the activities in the northwest. Some improvement is revealed in the machinery industry but buying is still sporadic. Metal are irregular.

Receipts in motion picture theatres are holding up well throughout the country. There is an improvement in the shoe industry and the output of silverware continues at a fairly steady rate.

In the field of transportation ocean shipping continues to show a slight improvement, the full car bookings being slightly better last week than the week before.

Looking at the country from a sectional viewpoint, the data does not show a favorable comparison with a year ago and it is evident that there is psychological disappointment at the failure of business conditions to show noticeable improvement. There is no doubt now that the first quarter of 1930 was much satisfactory to most businesses than the first quarter of 1931, which indicates clearly that the bottom of the depression was reached in December, 1930, and has continued on more or less the same level since the first of the year. Officials express the opinion that there is no information on which to base any accurate projection of the future, but the conviction is growing that the latter part of 1931 will show an improvement over the first half of the year in many lines of business.

STICKERS

A carpenter constructed an oblong pignen and then discovered that he could save two posts to which the uniform fence rails were nailed, by making the pen square instead of oblong. Each pen would have an equal area, but in the square pen there would be a post to the each pig to. If the pigs numbered less than 56, how many were there, to work out in the above manner?

(The correct answer will be printed in tomorrow's paper.)

Knowing that each letter represents a number, in order to add KDCIH to IFABE and get BIBDEB, the letters must represent numbers as follows: A=0; B=1; C=2; D=3; E=4; F=5; G=6; H=7; I=8 and J=9. The problem worked out in those numbers is shown above.

Your Birthday

"TAURUS."
If May 9th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:45 a. m. to 10 a. m. from 1:15 p. m. to 3:30 p. m. and from 6:15 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger hours are from 10:30 a. m. to noon, and from 4 p. m. to 5:45 p. m.

May 9th, according to the astrological signs, presages an atmosphere of lassitude and lethargy. No work should be essayed that demands close attention and keen concentration. Do what is necessary and be satisfied! After sunset, conditions favor lovers and sweethearts.

A child born on this May 9th will be whimsical and winning. It will work hard at its studies, but a poor memory will handicap it. As maturity approaches, it will reveal a strong, high principled character, with keen sense of justice, and a good fund of common sense.

Born on May 9th, many envy you because of what they call "your luck." They forget that if you show versatility, adaptability, and shrewdness, these virtues have only been acquired after a long struggle with an inner self that craved self-indulgence and the way of least resistance. Only by superhuman efforts have you been able to metamorphose your character, and have been enabled to substitute for the weaknesses of yesterday the virtues of today. You have overcome the handicaps of youth, but it has not diminished your charm or given you a swollen head.

In your own effective, but quiet way, you are self-confident, but never blantly so. You possess much courage, and never acknowledge defeat. As a matter of fact, you are at your best when your back is to the wall. Your views are broad and tolerant, you are in no way wedded to tradition or controlled by convention.

Your ambition is unlimited, but it would be well for you not to overtax your strength or powers of endurance. It is advisable to

LITTLE CHUTE TO SEND FIREMEN TO SCHOOL AT MADISON

City Officials Consider Delegates to Be Sent to Short Course

Anton Jansen, village president and Greg Lenz, fire chief at Little Chute, are considering the selection of delegates to the third annual Wisconsin short course in firemanship at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, June 23, 24, 25 and 26. Mr. Jansen said the village would send several of its firemen to the school and the names of the men would be announced later.

Modern developments in fire prevention, fire control and fire extinguishing are studied.

"Attendance by our firemen will result in the improvement of the local department with possible reduction in fire insurance rates," said Mr. Jansen.

The short course will include a series of lectures and discussions, under the leadership of well-known experts in the field on such topics as:

Training of firemen; first aid instruction; law and evidence in arson cases; fire department organization and administration; work of the fire prevention bureau; fire department hydraulics; fighting attic and cellar fires; fire waste in industry; ventilation at fires; chemistry of fires and combustion; construction, care and operation of pumps; selling the fire department to the public; fighting oil, paint and enamel fires.

The part of the course devoted to the training of firemen will consist of lectures, discussions and demonstrations. The demonstrations will include several hose and ladder exhibitions, resuscitation, first aid for injuries, and the use of fire extinguishers.

That traces of the gas from the tear gas bomb which was exploded at the police station by Officer Carl Radtke Wednesday morning, were still noticeable in the cell rooms Thursday morning, this was evident when Sergeant Herbert Kapp appeared from the back room with tears coursing down his cheeks.

JUNIOR GIRLS CAN QUALIFY AS SEWING EXPERTS

The day of sitting on cushions and sewing fine seams may be over, but eighth grade girls in McKinley junior high school home arts class can cut dress patterns with accuracy and make their seams by sewing machine.

Twelve girls, under the direction of Miss Ruth Lindall, are busily working with a summer wardrobe problem, and each girl is making a washable dress. Most of the dress materials with which the class is working is Peter Pan cloth, batiste and dimities. In an earlier project this class has learned the value of color and its useful combinations, as well as studying the dress types for certain figures.

In the class are Dorothy Blake, Joyce Coon, Charlotte Retler, Leone Werner, Inez Spletter, Mariella Schroeder, Maxine Rule, Ruth Barnes, Evelyn Abel, Eileen Rhoder, Ethel Scarborough and Lella Pfund.

It Is Said--

That the workers at the Appleton post office have a "Letter" which always returns. In fact, they admit the "Letter" has been there so long they have become attached to it. It is a human "Letter" that understands and helps many of the carriers settle their problems. The "Letter" is about six feet long and weighs in the neighborhood of 160 pounds. It has been taken along on every city and rural route in the city and the carrier has always brought it back with him.

That letter is John Letter, superintendent of mails at the post office. Part of Mr. Letter's duties are to inspect every mail route. Mr. Letter has been at the post office for about 30 years.

SELECT POOR COMMISSIONER AT BOARD MEET

J. H. Sullivan Is Named at Combined Looks—Drexler Is Fire Chief

Special to Post-Crescent
Combined Looks—J. H. Sullivan was appointed poor commissioner, to take charge of poor aid activities at the village board meeting Tuesday evening. Poor aid is a large item of the village expense, $1,400 being expended last year for this purpose and indications are that the amount required this year will be considerably in excess of that. Prior to the incorporation of the village, the sum had never been in excess of $200. Not all of the families receiving aid reside in the village.

Joseph Drexler, a former Appleton fireman has been appointed fire chief and marshal for the village.

Mr. Drexler has a service record of over 22 years with the Appleton fire department. He assumed his new duties May 5.

A change has been made in the telephone directory listing of the local fire department. Heretofore listed under the name of Mr. Berglins it is now listed as Combined Looks fire department.

Owing to business depression and poor aid, the board is on a strict economical program. Little is being planned in the way of building or improvements. A new pump has been installed at Combined Looks park at an expense of $138.53. George W. Coonen of Little Chute had charge of installation.

Royalton—At a meeting of the Grange on Wednesday evening, C. W. Fletcher was elected overseer to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Victor Casey.

Members of the Smith-Hughes agricultural class of Manawa were present and gave talks, music was furnished by local members.

FLASHES OF LIFE

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York—There's a new word in the English language, "Book-smear." It has been selected by the Book Publishers' Research Institute in a contest. The prize was 50 books. The word means: "A person who habitually borrows books from friends, a victim of the voracious habit of borrowing away books from homes and libraries of friends and even casual acquaintances."

Chicago—Lavinia wore these Scotch, lavish in use of language. Prof. William A. Craigie of the University of Chicago has worked 12 years on list of words used by Scots between the thirteenth and seventeenth centuries. He has just finished the A's. Two dozen more volumes are coming.

Berlin—Old shoes have been abandoned as a savings bank by one Berlin resident who had his savings of 500, hidden between the soles. His wife gave the shoes to a tramp, who sold them to a cobbler. The honest cobbler read of the loss in the newspapers and returned shoes and money.

Madrid—The new Spain is abandoning some Republican colors to speak. In place of olive green khaki, similar to that of the United States army, Spanish soldiers will have gray like the French gray.

Washington—Youth in Ethiopia is being lured to drink ships by sweet music. The emperor's private printing press gets out a newspaper which tells about it and a copy has come to Washington. A drink called TEJ is served in decanters and sundry platters are spent for it. The paper wants drink shops forbidden.

London—Jack spends most of his time going up and down the Wimbledon hill. He is a horse who helps other horses pull carts and his master gets splenore for each assist. Jack has been up and down the hill 17,000 times the last four years.

MAY CALL SPECIAL LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Madison—(AP)—A special session of the legislature next fall to consider chain banking legislation is contingent upon adjournment of the legislature July 1, it was authoritatively stated at the capitol today.

Last Wednesday, Assemblyman E. M. Rowlands, Cambridge, introduced a bill for an interim committee on banking legislation. This action followed a decision to withhold introduction of a substitute to the Schmieg chain bank bill on the ground that it could scarcely muster a two-thirds vote in the senate.

Under Rowlands' measure, the special committee of three senators and five assemblymen and two citizens appointed by the governor, will report either to a special session or to the 1933 legislature.

Further information on the material can be secured at the highway office. The committee also will open bids Monday on a gravel plant, which the county will sell to the highest bidder.

Here are Some Women Whom Famous American Will Honor on Mother's Day

Famous sons and daughters occupy the spotlight for 364 days of the year—but Sunday is Mother's Day. And in the pictures above the Post-Crescent cameraman lift these mothers of noted Americans out of the comparative obscurity in which they live. . . . Air-minded mother of an air-minded son, Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh is shown in aviation togs, upper left, with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. . . . Champion Glenna Collett's smile is well known to golf fans, and in the photo, lower left, taken with her mother, you see that the smile is an inherited one. . . . Upper center is Mrs. Charles A. Vallee (at right), whose crooning lullabies in other years may have inspired Rudy Vallee to croon to all the nation; and (at left) the mother of Lou Gehrig, who dished up the first "home plates" the Yankee slugger ever saw. . . . Many political posters forecast the nomination of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt as the next Democratic presidential candidate, and he has no more ardent supporter than his mother, shown with him in center. . . . Helon Willis Moody's return to active tennis competition will be eagerly watched by her mother, pictured with the court queen, lower center. . . . Mrs. E. N. Nichols, seen upper right with Ruth Nichols, is aiding her aviatrix daughter in her plans for a trans-Atlantic solo flight this summer. . . . And when Elinor Smith, another famed woman flyer, lands after her various record attempts, her mother—seen with her lower right—always is at the field to greet her with a smile.

Rubber Stamp Makers Plan For New World Calendar

European makers of rubber stamps and dating devices are already considering the changes that will be required in business machinery if the League of Nations approves a change in the existing calendar at the international conference on calendar simplification, meeting at Geneva, Oct. 26.

The necessary changes in dating machinery will differ widely according to the nature of the reform adopted by the League. Some estimates of the cost of these changes will naturally receive consideration in the arguments which are to be examined and approved by the international experts.

It will no doubt be of considerable interest to American business men to learn that calendar changes are now considered inevitable by well-informed students of international opinion in Geneva. According to an authoritative business publication, "Within five years the old calendar will be thrown into the discard, and civilized nations will begin a new reckoning of time and a new system of dates, designed to meet modern conditions and requirements."

A French newspaper correspondent who has been very close to the League of Nations since its inception, gives the following summary of the present situation in this regard:

"The world-wide movement for calendar reform has been gathering momentum for more than five years. In the League of Nations it has strong official support from the British delegates, and keen interest is now being shown by Germany, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Spain and Italy.

"Demand for calendar reform is non-political. It comes from business, commerce and finance.

Changes Important

The proposed changes in the calendar are fully as important as the changes in measurements which preceded the adoption in Europe of the metric system. They are fully as important, but they are not as revolutionary—in the sense that they will not cause any serious dislocation of business through shifting from the old to the new.

"Developments of the past year have brought us straight to the threshold of calendar re-adjustment. An international conference will meet in Geneva in October for the express purpose of sifting the various plans and deciding on the one which is to have the backing and support of the League of Nations. Once this much is done, the rest is comparatively simple, being merely a matter of drafting the required international treaties to reform effective on an agreed date. It would surprise nobody in Geneva if the new calendar should come into force by 1932 or 1933."

Scores of plans for calendar revision have been brought before the League. Many of them are so absurd that they receive no serious consideration. Others which have obvious merits are too radical and revolutionary to get widespread support.

In the United States there are two major plans under study. One of these, backed by Moses Cohnswort of Canada and George Eastman of America, propose a 13-month calendar, with each month containing 28 days. An extra day, to be known as "Year Day," is added at the end of the year to fill out the proper astronomical period.

A second plan, known as "The World Calendar," is much less radical. It advocates a 12-month calendar, in which the four quarters of the year are made exactly equal in length, containing one month of 31 days and two months of 30 days each. This plan also finishes up its year with an extra "Year Day" holiday to make the required 365 days.

Under this plan, January would always begin on Sunday and contain 31 days. February and March would each contain 30 days, making a first quarter of exactly 91 days. April would have 31 days, followed by May and June with 30 days each. The third quarter would consist of July with 31 days followed by August and September with 30 days each. The fourth quarter, similarly, would have October with 31 days, followed by November and December with 30 days each.

Each quarter would begin on Sunday and each quarter calendar would be exactly the same.

For manufacturers of dating devices, the principal change that would be necessary would be the correction of their "hands" by the addition of signs to indicate "Year Day" and "Leap Day," dates which either have no numbered figure in the revised calendar or are indicated by a repetition of the previous date.

The world calendar, for example, designates its year day as a second Dec. 30, falling on a double Saturday. Similarly it designates its extra leap day (every four years) as a second June 30, also falling on a double Saturday.

Presumably these extra days will be indicated on dating machines and time stamps with the letters Y and L in place of the numeral for the day of the month. A date, for example, would print "Dec. Y, 1936" for the last day of each year, a day which comes between December 30th and January 1st. Leap year's extra day would be printed "Jun L 1936," representing the extra day between June 30th and July 1st.

16,627 BOOKS ARE CIRCULATED IN APRIL

A total of 16,627 books, of which 11,657 were adult volumes, and 5,040 juvenile, were circulated at the Appleton public library during March, the monthly report of Miss Florence Day, librarian, reveals. Of this number 12,146 were fiction, 4,116 non-fiction, 177 unbound periodicals, and 128 bound periodicals. There were 850 pictures and 320 clippings loaned during the month.

With the addition of 218 volumes and the withdrawal of 18, the books on the shelves of the library at the end of the month number 31,531, of which 25,091 were adult books and 5,440 juvenile.

There were 199 new borrowers registered during March, and 352 registrations were cancelled. Of the 11,613 patrons at the end of the month, 762 were from the county.

Seven books were received as gifts during the month.

Adenoids Are Cause Of Dullness In Children

Madison—Many a child that has a look of dullness is only suffering from adenoids, the removal of which frequently turns a pale and sickly child into a robust individual. Much of the nervousness, restlessness and exhaustion among young children is caused from adenoids which obstruct their breathing and sap their vitality.

Removal of adenoids makes one of the greatest changes in the physical appearance of children, according to the educational committee of the State Medical Society which recommends that backward children be given an immediate examination to see if they are not suffering from adenoids. A bulletin issued by the committee today declares that adenoids shut off the normal supply of fresh air which should be supplying the children during their development.

"If adenoids resulted only in mouth breathing, that alone would be serious enough, but the effects do not stop there," declares the bulletin of the medical society. "Children who suffer from adenoids are usually pale, often narrow chested and stoop shouldered. They are not strong and robust as are normal children.

"Nervous disorders, headaches and restlessness at night and disinclination to engage in mental activities are frequently the results of adenoids. But this is by no means all the harm done by adenoids. They affect the voice, disfigure the facial expression, interfere with the hearing, give rise to night terrors, and open the way for serious infections by disease germs.

"The alteration of the facial expression is often so great that the child looks stupid. One of the chief disfigurements caused is that of jaws and teeth. The teeth of the upper jaw are inclined to stick out. This is often responsible for malnutrition because of the failure of the teeth to meet squarely so that the food may be chewed properly. In these cases the roof of the mouth, that is the palate is narrow and high arched and the teeth of the upper jaw irregular and crowded.

"Wherever adenoids are large enough to give rise to any of the symptoms mentioned the adenoids should be removed. This is especially the case with children under ten years of age for it is probable that the condition will grow worse. The operation is a simple one and not dangerous although it is performed under an anesthetic.

"Remember that the child with adenoids is handicapped. The only remedy is to have the tissue which is blocking the air passages removed. Relief is immediate and the health and strength of the child usually improves rapidly afterward."

PLANS SERIES OF CLINICS IN TWO NORTHERN COUNTIES

Examinations Will Be Made in Preparation for Opening of Hospital

Madison—(P)—Clinics will be conducted in Monroe and Trempealeau counties during the month in anticipation of the opening in June of the new Wisconsin Orthopedic Hospital here, Marguerite M. Lison, executive director of the Wisconsin Association for the Disabled said today.

The association is taking a census of disabled in Buffalo, Pepin, Dunn, and Wood counties preparatory to clinical studies there, the director said. Although more than 50 cases will be transferred to the new institution from the Wisconsin General Hospital, facilities there will enable the care of from 60 to 80 others. The new orthopedic hospital will contain 16 six-bed wards, six rooms of one to four-bed capacity and space for eight to 12 isolated cases.

With the new hospital nearing completion, work by the association is being accelerated, Miss Lison said. Reports on 2,000 disabled cases in the state are complete, 1500 reports are partially entered, and the organization knows of 1,000 others. There are 8,500 permanently disabled in the state, according to figures compiled by the director. Cases of a temporary nature are not considered and those over 21 years of age are cared for by the rehabilitation division of the State Board of Vocational Education, she said.

Miss Lison stressed the fact that the county clinics are made possible through cooperation of the county medical societies. She commended the legislature and governor for approval of the Groves bill establishing standards for the care of crippled children. The bill, which was revised through a substitute amendment offered by the Wisconsin Association for the Disabled, changes the word "deformed" to "crippled" and defines adequate treatment, as it relates to crippled persons, as "that given in a hospital which maintains a resident or visiting surgeon who devotes full time to the practice of orthopedic surgery."

The Milwaukee Children's Hospital and the new Wisconsin Orthopedic Hospital are the only institutions under this category, Miss Lison said.

50 per cent in gasoline consumption. An increase in speed and acceleration is also claimed for the new carburetor.

FOR WHAT REASON?

A woman rushed into a police station with a photograph in her hand.

"My husband had disappeared," she sobbed. "Here is his photograph. I want you to find him."

The sergeant looked at the photograph.

"Why?" he asked.—Tit-Bits.

The electric locomotive first came into use about 1885.

[Personal]

Every newspaper, magazine, and radio station in the country right now seems interested in teaching women how to get their money's worth from the grocer and the butcher. We're glad to see them so worked up over victuals . . . .

For A&P stores are for women who are keen judges and shrewd buyers of food—who make a business of running their households well at low expense. The more women know about food, the more customers A&P will have.

EASY TO OBTAIN GOOD PLANS FOR HOME BUILDING

Contractors, Supply Men and Architects All
Ready to Serve

Appletonians contemplating reconstruction or remodeling of their homes in this period of reduced prices in materials and labor, will have little difficulty in securing plans and specifications, which will satisfy both their fancies and pocket-books.

Contractors and building supply men, in anticipation of a large amount of remodeling and construction work during the spring and summer months, have fortified themselves with building sketches and plans which will meet the demands of almost every builder.

For those who are planning the construction of elaborate new homes, the services of Appleton architects will be found priced at a reduced figure. Keeping in harmony with the changes in designs for residences, architects have been spending considerable time studying and making a large variety of plans and specifications.

Plans and estimates for construction of smaller homes are available in plan services provided by building supply men and contractors. During the past few years this plan service has been moving from the contractor to building supply men.

In former years the contractor dealt independently with the home builder, preparing his plans and making estimates on prices of building materials and labor.

Under the new plan, building supply men and contractors work together, the latter group being able to present plans and price estimates which reduce the cost of material to a minimum.

This new plan also gives the prospective home builder the opportunity to seek competitive bids from various contractors on plans and specifications which have been secured from those who are furnishing the material.

In most cases these plans are offered free of charge, affording an opportunity for the builder to select a model home which will give him permanent satisfaction.

Plans have been prepared to give builders a wide perspective. They include data on the proper location of living room, dining room, kitchen, bath room, bed rooms and various closets.

They also give information on the proportionate sizes of the various rooms.

When You CAN'T QUIT

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, keep cool and carry-on in comfort.

Bayer Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it insures your comfort. Freedom from those pains that nag at nerves and wear you down. One tablet will block that threatening headache while it is still just a threat. Take two or three tablets when you've caught a cold, and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Bayer Aspirin when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, it will often "save the day" and spare you many uncomfortable, unproductive hours. Perfectly harmless, so keep it handy, keep it in mind, and use it. No man of affairs can afford to ignore the score and more of uses explained in the proven directions. From a grumbling tooth to those rheumatic pains which seem almost to bend the bones, Bayer Aspirin is ready with its quick relief—and always works. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Any nagging, needless pain.

Get the genuine tablets, stamped with the Bayer cross. They are of perfect purity, absolute uniformity, and have the same action every time. Why experiment with imitations costing a few cents less? The saving is too little. There is too much at stake. But there is economy in the purchase of genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets in the large bottles.

MANY MEASURES INTRODUCED BY WAUPACA SOLON

Representative E. E. Browne Proposed Two Constitutional Amendments

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington — Rep. Edward E. Brown of Waupaca introduced two proposed amendments to the constitution of the United States, two resolutions authorizing the United States to participate in international congresses, six bills of national nature, one Wisconsin bill, three bills for the Menominee Indians, and one private relief bill, exclusive of private pension bills, during the Seventy-first congress.

Of these measures, three became law. One authorized participation of this country in the ninth international dairy congress, to be held in Copenhagen, Denmark, in July, and Chairman Charles Hill of the Wisconsin state department of agriculture and markets has been appointed one of the delegates. Another authorized participation of this country in the international fur trade exhibition and congress in Germany in July, August and September, 1930.

The third caused considerable controversy from time to time, but was finally passed, permitting the Menominees to use $20,000 of their funds to employ general attorneys to defend any suits against the tribe and prosecute any claims it may have.

Strike Out Item
Originally the bill would have authorized the attorneys to work out means of using and conserving the resources of the tribe, particularly their power and lumber resources, but this was stricken out of the bill. As it is, the attorneys—the Hughes firm of New York City, headed by Charles Evans Hughes Jr.—will chiefly concern themselves with fighting the claims of the state of Wisconsin to certain lands in their reservation, and with working out claims against the United States for lumber said to have been waste-fully cut.

Shortly before the end of the Congress, Rep. Browne introduced a bill proposing a new kind of corporation for the Menominee tribe to use to handle their business. It would be a combination municipal corporation and industrial incorporation, for it would, as a municipal corporation, exercise the usual police and public welfare functions of a municipality, and as an industrial corporation, it would handle the land, lumber, mill, timber and water power rights of the tribe. There was no action on it.

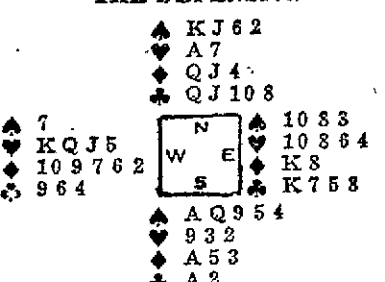

The other Menominee bill, on which there was no action, would have permitted the Menominees to take their claims against the United States to the United States Court of Claims with right of appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States. The Bureau of Indian Affairs opposed it and there was no action on it.

The only Wisconsin bill Rep. Browne introduced would have authorized a fish-cultural station with

How To Play Contract Bridge

PLAYING HIGH HONORS ON THE DEFENSIVE

There is an old Whist adage to the effect that when an honor is led by one player that one next to play should cover such honor with the next card in rank if held. Of course in Whist there was only one exposed card, namely, that card last dealt to Dealer which determined what suit should be trump.

With the introduction of Bridge there was an exposed Dummy, and with the introduction of Auction, bidding, The Dummy and the bidding naturally caused a variation in conventional play and it is now generally recognized that one should not necessarily play an honor simply because one had been played in front of him.

There are many, however, who inquire just when and when not honors should be covered.

In the above deal East has two chances to play Kings upon Queens led by North, the Dummy. In the case of the Club—the first one led, he should refuse to do so for North has two of the sequence left and they would automatically be established. In this case he should hold off until South's probable Ace has been played.

As to the Diamonds, he should play the King when the Queen is led for he has but two Diamonds in his hand, and Declarer might well shift to the small Diamond on the second round catch the King and at the same time establish the Jack in Dummy.

The general rule then is that when holding three or more, the defensive player should not play his honor at least until the last card of the exposed sequence has been played. Holding but two he should play the honor at the first lead in hopes of establishing a card for partner.

In this particular case East cannot save game but he can prevent South from making a Grand Slam. If he should play the King of Clubs on the first round, Declarer could discard two Hearts and lose no trick in that suit, while if he should refuse to play the King of Diamonds when the Queen is led, Declarer can pick the card up on the second round and lose no Diamonds.

Salient Points of Bidding

Contract: South opens the bidding with One Spade, and West passing, North jumps the bid to Three Spades. East passing, South bids Four Spades concluding the bidding.

Auction: South obtains the contract for his opening bid of One Spade.

The Play

West opens the King of Hearts and Dummy takes the trick with the Ace. The Queen of Clubs is led immediately, and East playing low, South plays the Two.

A small Spade is led from Dummy and taken by Declarer. Declarer plays the Ace of Clubs followed by a small trump, putting Dummy in the lead. The Jack of Clubs is led and East refusing to play the King, Declarer discards a Diamond.

The high Spade is led from Dummy followed by the Queen of Diamonds. This finesse proving successful, Declarer makes a Small Slam, losing one Heart.

Such Slam was, of course, not bidable for not only one but two successful finesses are involved.

Browne was one of the "Jame ducks." He spoke for the Norris "Jame duck" amendment and against the Longworth amendment to it setting a date for the adjournment of each congress.

Two of Rep. Browne's public bills were concerned with highway construction, and there was no action on either of them. One of them, for which Rep. Browne made a long speech in the house of Representatives, would have authorized an annual expenditure of $250,000,000 for highway construction for two years, and 50 per cent for trunk roads and 50 per cent for rural mail farm-to-market roads. He urged passage of this bill as an emergency measure to give "jobs to jobless workers and roads to roadless farmers."

The other road bill would have created a special highway fund out of the $407,341,145.01 which France owed the United States for surplus war material, highway equipment and supplies, bought by the French government. This would have been divided as the proposed $500,000,000 would have been.

His other public bills, on which there was no action, were:

To prohibit the transportation of machine guns in interstate commerce.

To prohibit lobbying and to regulate those who attempt to influence congressmen in connection with legislation.

To withdraw war department aid from military training in high schools, not including private military schools.

The senate passed the house committee favorably reported a bill identical with Rep. Browne's one private bill, but the house did not pass either the senate bill or the Browne bill. It provided for the payment of $2,750 to Mrs. Germaine M. Finley, widow of James C. Finley, who died at Havre, France, while in the foreign service of the United States.

His Record

On legislation on which there were yeas-and-nays votes in the house during the final session of the 71st congress, Rep. Browne voted as follows:

For increasing the loan value of world war veterans' bonus certificates to half their face value, and for overriding the President's veto of this measure.

Against the Longworth amendment to the "Jame duck" amendment, setting a date for adjournment of each congress, and for the "Jame duck" amendment.

For restricting immigration in 1931 and 1932 to 10 per cent of the 1930 immigration.

Against accepting the senate amendments to the veterans' hospitalization bill increasing the amount and permitting the veterans' administrator, with the consent of the President, to transfer funds from one project to another.

For the compromise proposal for government operator of the government-owned power and fertilizer plants at Muscle Shoals, Ala.

Against making income from treasury obligations exempt from federal income and profits taxes.

For the oleomargarine bill.

For taking up the Wagner bill to establish a system of federal and state employment exchanges.

For appropriating money to permit raises in certain government employees' salaries previously authorized by law.

For reducing the marine force in Nicaragua to half the present contingent by Dec. 31, 1931, and to one company by May 31, 1932.

Against Measure

Against federalizing the national guard and paired for limiting federal funds for military training to those schools where such training is optional, not compulsory.

Against the original House proposals for drought relief which had no provision for loans for food and for all the "food amendments."

For additional funds for foreign service buildings, for additional funds for the national arboretum in Washington, for a $5,000,000 advance to the reclamation fund for construction and operation, for raising the salary of the governor of Alaska to $10,000 from $7,000.

Paired, without indicating how he would have voted if present, on additional compensation for relatives of sailors and marines killed in the Lake Denmark naval ammunition depot explosion, on striking out the $125,000 fund for ambassadors and ministers to foreign countries to use in entertaining, and on overriding the president's veto of a private bill.

Not voting and not paired on recommitting to committee the Capper-Kelly bill to permit manufacturers to set the retail price of trademarked goods.

Buying...

with YOUR EYES OPEN!

MANY of the products that greet you from shelf and counter today bear familiar names.

Names you know by their advertising. By their reputation. Or by personal experience. They seem like old friends.

Other products are strangers.

What do you know about them?

Often their appeal is a "bargain price." But are they always bargains?

Their labels are attractive. More inviting, sometimes, than those of the products they seek to imitate. But how can you ever know what these labels conceal?

THE ANSWER TO SUBSTITUTION IS ALWAYS "NO"

Remember this every time you buy—Before there can be an imitation, there must be something worth imitating.

Have you ever seen an imitation as good as the original?

Clerks who try slyly to sell you something "just as good" are looking only to today. Tomorrow the same product may not be on the shelf. Perhaps even today the clerk does not know who made it.

Ask yourself... "Why does he offer me this substitute? Why does he urge me to accept this or that product instead of the one I want?" There are many reasons. Most of them selfish. Certainly, none of them springs from the desire to serve you better.

These facts are published by this newspaper to tell you of your danger. To protect you against substitution. To warn you to buy with your eyes open.

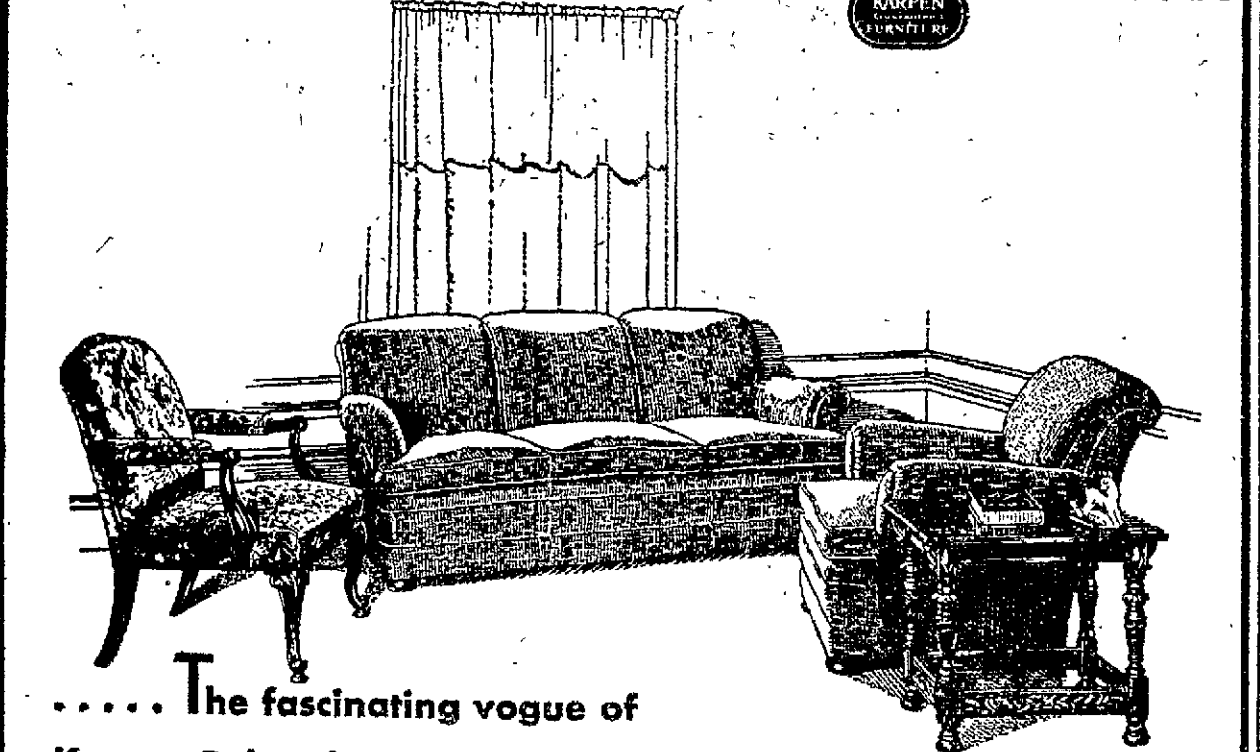

No deserving product ever needs the claim, "just as good." When you hear those words, you may know there is something better.

And that package which "holds a little more" often holds little more than disappointment.

There is only one sure way for any shopper to avoid substitution.

Ask for recognized brands. Ask for them by name. Accept no questionable imitations.

URGE PLANTING OF EMERGENCY CROPS FOR HAY

County Agent Gives Advice to Farmers Whose Original Stands Are Poor

BY G. A. SELL,
County Agricultural Agent

Outagamie-co farmers, whose new alfalfa and clover seedlings were killed out or didn't come, still have two opportunities of getting the legume hay for next winter. There are two crops that can be sown yet this spring to make a very good substitute for alfalfa or clover. One of these is a mixture of oats and field peas; the other oats and soybeans. The oat and pea mixture can still be sown for the next two weeks. Soybeans should not be sown until after that time or even until the first of June.

The best early seeded grass and legume mixture for emergency hay is oats and field peas. Where the soil and climate are adapted to pea growing, this mixture is excellent. The two crops grow well together, since both would be seeded at about the same time, and both are rapid growers. Any of the standard varieties of field peas will give good results, such as the Canadian Scotch, or the Wisconsin Green. Both medium late oats such as the Swedish Select, Pedigree No. 5, or the Wisconsin Wonder, Pedigree No. 1, and early oats, State's Pride, Pedigree No. 7 are well adapted to grow with any of these varieties of peas.

A standard rate of seeding for Wisconsin farmers is, one and one-half bushels of each an acre. If more peas are desired, one and one-half bushels of oats with two bushels of peas will give splendid results. Although increasing the amount of peas in the mixture does not materially change the total yield of hay, the percentage of pea hay is increased by 10 per cent when two bushels of peas are used (30 per cent to 40 per cent). The seed of the two may be thoroughly mixed and drilled in with a grain drill or seeded with a broadcast seeder. Early seedlings give the best results, but since the crop is intended for hay and not for seed, the mixture may be seeded as late as the third week of May in a normal season with good results.

The best time to cut for hay is when the oats are in the milk stage. The peas are then usually beginning to develop pods. If there is much delay the hay is liable to be too straw-like since oats develop very rapidly when the seeds begin to form. If the hay is well made, it will be palatable and nutritious. Good oat and pea hay has nearly as much digestible protein in 100 pounds of dry matter as clover hay but lacks its palatability.

Soybeans for Hay
The soybean is the best late planted hay substitute for the dairyman when there are shortages in alfalfa and clover. Unlike Sudan grass and the millets, soybeans are leguminous and provide a hay relatively high in digestible protein and total nutrients. Soybean hay ranks with alfalfa in this respect and is somewhat superior to red clover. In addition to its good qualities for a hay, a crop of soybeans, if properly inoculated, has a beneficial effect upon the soil by fixing atmospheric nitrogen.

Soybean varieties for seed production are also suitable for hay. The Ito San, Manchou, Black Eyebrow, Mild-west, and Medium Early Green varieties are all suited for hay production in Wisconsin.

Soybeans are not a difficult crop to grow for hay. No legume is so widely adapted to various soils. They grow well on both heavy and light soils and are valuable for very sandy soils. The crop is not sensitive to an acid soil and so may be profitably grown without liming. Even well drained marsh soils will grow soybeans successfully.

For best results, soybeans should be planted about the same time as corn. They may be seeded with success up to the third week in June. If, following the removal of early cutting peas, the soil is disced and seeded to soybeans by the first of July, a fair yield of hay may sometimes be secured. The early plantings are best, however, since the crop grows better during the early part of the season and reaches maturity when the haying weather is most desirable.

Soybeans for hay may be either seeded in cultivated rows like corn or drilled in like grain. On heavy soils, the latter method is usually preferable, while upon the light soils seeding in cultivated rows should be more frequently practiced, since on these soils the crop seems to do better under cultivation. For a drilled in crop the amount of seed for an acre should be two to two and one-half bushels depending upon the size of the seed and the fertility of the soil. Heavy seedings favor less weeds in the hay.

Don't Plant Deep
Soybeans should not be planted too deep, particularly on heavy soils, otherwise the plants may not come up well. From one inch to not more than an inch and a half is usually deep enough. For best results the seed should be inoculated with soybean culture before planting.

Every precaution should be taken to protect broadcasted or drilled-in beans from the weeds. Two good practices may be used. First, since soybeans are a fairly late seeded crop, many of the weeds may be destroyed by keeping the soil well worked previously to planting. Second, either the light harrow or the weeder may be used effectively without much injury to the crop when the plants are from two to six inches high. The best time to do this is in the afternoon of a sunny day. The plants are then limp or more wilted and the harrow will pass through readily without breaking them off.

Further information on emergency hays may be had from bulletin No. 339 or from my office. Copies of this bulletin may be obtained from the office.

picture rental idea and the part it is playing in developing an appreciation for good art are the reasons prompting the gift. Dr. Wriston said.

A gift of 20 reproductions of famous German paintings was received recently from Dr. L. C. Baker to be added to the rental collection. Dr. Baker, professor of modern languages at Lawrence is now traveling in Europe on a year's leave of absence. The two gifts will make available to the students an unusually good selection of fine art specimens to hang in their rooms in Lawrence dormitories and fraternity houses, according to college authorities.

The Lawrence plan, now in its second semester, is being adopted in several colleges and universities throughout the country. Educators generally have expressed an interest in it as a new medium by which art appreciation and development of good taste may be created in the undergraduate groups. The students are charged a rental fee of 50 cents a semester for each picture they chose to have in their rooms.

Writes Miss Klug

"For some years I have had a rough and pimply skin. I tried many kinds of skin lotions and creams, but none of them seemed to do any good. One day I saw your advertisement for Resinol Ointment and sent for a sample. The results were so good, I bought a full size jar. It cleared away the redness, and roughness, and healed every pimple. Now I always keep a jar on hand, and am glad to pass along a good word for Resinol." (Signed)—Miss Julia Klug, Loyd, Wis.

ORANGE TAKES THREE FIRSTS FOR 3RD PALCE

Cavert Wins Lows, Hecker the 440 and Jim Neller the Pole Vault

MANITOWOC high school track and field team again showed it will dominate in valley conference track circles this season when it topped first place in a triangular meet with Oshkosh and Appleton at George A. Whiting athletic field yesterday.

The Manitowoc team scored 47 points, Oshkosh was second with 32 and Appleton third with 25.

Three first places were all the Orange tracksters were able to get a hold of. Cavert took a first in the low hurdles, Hecker stepped a beautiful race in the 440 to win easily and Jim Neller boosted himself over 10 feet 6 inches in the pole vault to take that.

The Orange also annexed three second places. Connie Frank finished second in the 100 yard dash and in the broad jump while Emmett Mortell was second in the high hurdles.

Manitowoc topped five first places and tied for a sixth with Oshkosh. Oshkosh had four firsts to show for its efforts and four seconds.

Meet officials were A. C. Denney, Lawrence, starter and referee and H. H. Helble, scorer.

The showing of the Orange squad was hardly a disappointment to Coach Joseph Shields who has recently realized this is not his year in valley track. The Orange failed to place a single man in the shot put and high jump or in the half mile. Coach Shields had picked his team to score 25 points and the boys added two for good measure.

The results:

220 low hurdles—Cavert (A); Rohrer (M); Jungbauer (O). Time: 27.9.

Johnny Farrell on GOLF

BY JOHNNY FARRELL
(Former American Open Champion)
As told to Alan Gould
No. 9 PUTTING

I N putting it is essential to be well anchored in a comfortable position.

After getting a smooth stroke, with an easy follow through (for distance putting) it is just a matter of practice and getting the proper line.

There are, however, really two types of putting, one for short distances, the other for anything beyond 10 or 12 feet.

The short putt is more of a tap-stroke, but it should be made nevertheless with a smooth motion, using the wrists only and with the arms well anchored to the sides or the hips.

I have a habit myself of anchoring my right elbow to the side to gain steadiness.

The long putt is a swing. For accuracy I usually try to pick a spot eight or 10 feet from my ball, using this spot as a direction guide. Any golfer will find this is a big help in keeping to the proper line.

Putting is at least 50 per cent psychology. Some days the hole looks as big as a barrel, from almost any part of the green, probably because the player happens to roll in a long one at the start or get a few close enough so that he acquires early confidence.

I see good players as well as duffers tighten up on the greens, making stabs at the ball, when all they need to do is take a good breath and relax.

Too much time spent on the putting practice greens is as bad as none at all.

Tournament players make a mistake by indulging in putting practice before play starts. Anyone who hasn't his putting touch by the time a tournament comes along won't find it on the practice greens.

I remember one event I entered a number of years ago at Youngstown, Ohio. I felt confident I had a good chance to win. Before it started, however, I got into a syndicate.

The results:

CINCINNATI REDS HAVE DROPPED 15 OUT OF 17 GAMES

Cards Down Pittsburgh and Win Their Seventh Straight Victory

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

THE Cincinnati Reds appear to be a few important parts of a good ball club despite Manager Dan Howley's efforts to build up something like a winner.

Howley made a few more changes yesterday, buying Harvey Hendrick, Brooklyn utility man, to plug the hole at first base, and releasing Chuck Dressen but it appears that he has plenty of work ahead of him.

Two Red outfielders, Wally Rostetter and Cliff Heathcote, are pointing the ball at a 400 clip but no other player on the team is even near the 300 mark. The return of Edd Roush hasn't worked out and Nick Culp has not been hitting. Joe Stripp, a 300 hitter last year, has the best mark of the infielders, 268, while Chick Cuccinello, who was expected to do some slugging, is barely above 200.

The Reds' pitching also has been ineffective. El Johnson did seven good innings against the Cubs yesterday only to weaken and Chicago hammered out five successive hits in the eighth to tie the score at 4-4. The Cubs pushed over another run off Ray Kopp in the eleventh to win, 5-4, for Cincinnati's fifteenth defeat in 17 games.

Two victories and Red Lucas, who has gone the route four times, took the other.

Cardinals Win Seventh
The league leading St. Louis Cardinals won their seventh game in a row yesterday, combining good pitching and powerful hitting to beat Pittsburgh 11 to 6. Jess Haines gave the Pirates only seven hits while the Cards got that many in the fourth inning, putting over five runs and then coming back after a shower to add four more in the fifth.

The St. Louis Browns, by far less successful than their townsmen so far, did about as well yesterday. They got started in the fifth inning and pounded four Cleveland pitchers for a total of 17 hits and a 10 to 4 victory. George Blaholder yielded 13 blows but he kept them well scattered to turn in his first victory of the season.

Vic Sorrell of Detroit also recorded his first win of the year, holding the Chicago White Sox to nine hits as the Tigers won 6 to 1. Detroit collected four hits and as many runs off Al Thomas before he retired the second man in the opening inning.

The eastern clubs of the American league had an open date as they began their first western trip of the year and New York and Boston in the National also were not scheduled. Brooklyn's game at Philadelphia was rained out.

K. C. S. AND LUTHERANS WIN SOFTBALL GAMES

Knights of Columbus and Zion Lutheran Society teams have won softball games in the fraternal league during the last two days. Wednesday evening the K. C. team copped by a score of 9 and 0 when the Holy Name team failed to turn up.

Last night the Zion Lutheran society team found the Eagles fairly easy and proceeded to bump them off, score 11 and 5.

The week's play will be completed tonight. Games are played on Wilson diamond.

GUARDS BEAT BRANDTS IN THRILLING GAME, 4-2

Co. D. and Brandt softball teams in the National league staged a mid-season, allright battle last night at Pierce park, the soldiers winning 4 and 2.

Taking a two run lead in the first inning when Green and Klein scored, the Guards held a lead throughout the game. They scored again in the fifth frame when Bauer scored and then served up the game in the eighth with a run by Zuehlke.

The Brandts tallied one run in the second inning and another in the sixth. Helms scored one and Kofarnus the other.

Batteries for the Brandts were Lautenschlager and Hartzheim; for the Guards, Klein and Zuehlke, and Bauer.

The week's final game will be played tonight with the Atlas and Pure Milk teams mixing.

Calling the Strikes

New York (CFA)—Chicago is going to be a "wobbling home" party to Joe McCarthy when he takes the Yankees there. It's to be on the south side, though there will be many north riders cheering in the stands for the former Cub boss.

Joe has been too busy mending the "wobbling home" party to get home for Chicago, but he admits he misses those guys who used to sit back of third base at Wrigley field and tell him how many mistakes he had made.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

THIS from Packey McFarland over at Manitowoc on why the Shipbuilder track teams have been so good in recent years:

"The advantage of proper training facilities for track was plainly evident at the relay carnival here on Saturday afternoon. The Red and White of Lincoln high dominated the meet. What was the reason? It was very plain. Manitowoc is the only conference school that has a cinder track and training facilities adjacent to the school. All the other schools have to travel long distances or else rely on a football or a baseball field near to the school to drill. Appleton high is the only other school with a regular field to drill on. They have Lawrence field but that is a couple of miles from the school. Oshkosh has to journey to the fair grounds. The two Bay schools have only the ball at a 400 clip but no other player on the team is even near the 300 mark. The return of Edd Roush hasn't worked out and Nick Culp has not been hitting. Joe Stripp, a 300 hitter last year, has the best mark of the infielders, 268, while Chick Cuccinello, who was expected to do some slugging, is barely above 200.

ST. PAUL WINS FROM RED BIRDS 1-0; TOPS ASSOCIATION TEAMS

Kansas City Beats Louisville When Eddie Pick Steals Home

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO—(AP)—St. Paul, which shares with Louisville the distinction of having won six American associations, but has not had one since 1924, is eyeing the 1931 pennant with high hopes of grabbing it.

St. Paul, along with the Colonels, has won the title six times, and finished second in the 1929 and 1930 races. In 1929, Kansas City finished with a lead of eight and one-half games over the Saints, but Louisville's margin last season was only two and one-half games.

Today Albert Leffeld's outfit was two games in front of Louisville, which has not fared so well on its jaunt through the western end of the league. The Saints, after taking a series from the Colonels, have swept through its opposition and appear set to start its next road journey well established in the whip seat.

St. Paul yesterday gained a full game by defeating Columbus, while Louisville was taking a beating from Kansas City.

The Saints had to go 10 innings to win one of the best played games of the season, 1 to 0, from the Red Birds, and were aided by an error in scoring the single run of the contest. With Anderson on third, Roettger bounced to Bedore who threw to the plate in time to get Anderson. Catcher Hinkle, however, dropped the ball, and Anderson was safe. Huck Betts kept eight Columbus hits widely spaced, while Wetherell who gave ten hits, did about as well.

Ragged base running, inability to bunch hits, and defensive laxity, were responsible for Louisville's 5 to 3 defeat by Kansas City. The Colonels got eleven hits, Kansas City made four errors, and Max Thomas walked four men. The Colonels, however, left ten base runners stranded. The Blues jumped into the lead in the first inning, scoring three runs, two of which went over on steals of home. Eddie Pick stole home after tripling.

The rest of the program was rained and frozen out.

Indianapolis versus Milwaukee and Toledo versus Minneapolis postponed, cold.

Boston Nationals Cling To First Division Post

BY JOHN B. FOSTER
Copyright, 1931

NEW YORK—(CPA)—The tenacity with which the Boston National league team has held to a place in the first division has been one of the most welcome surprises of the season, at least in Boston. If the club can do as well against the western teams, when the latter come east, the National league race will be more fraught with interest for that reason than for any other development of this championship year.

Boston was in fourth place on May 6, 1930, with eight victories and seven defeats, a little less successful than it has been this season to date, but the Boston team of 1930 was not playing as well as that of this year. The New York Giants are the only eastern team that has shown skill enough to outplay Boston this season and there is always a chance that Boston will kick back hard against the Giants because it has done this more than once.

Boston went sailing into the west before the western teams had come east in 1930 and on that trip broke down very badly at St. Louis. The result of the venture into prairie land was something like a meager four victories against eight defeats. It made Boston sag so badly that it slipped into the second division. From that time on try as he would, Bill McKechnie could not rally his players strongly enough to get out of it, and yet the team more than once played very attractive baseball. This year the situation is reversed. The western teams are going to drop into Boston before the Boston players are obliged to leave their own field.

If Boston can play as well against the west as it has played in its first home-and-home series in the east, the National league race is going to feel the effects of that series until long after the fourth of July.

When Boston went to St. Louis for the first time in 1930 the advantage gained in that series by St. Louis without doubt, had much weight in the remainder of its games. St. Louis got a grip on itself and changed from a team which had been slightly wavering into one that finally had as many victories as defeats—twelve each—and that put the Cardinals into the thick of the fight.

Boston may not prove to be a dark horse for the 1931 championship but it is likely to be as obstinate as an old gray mule in the race.

The Woolen Mills scored in every inning but the fourth. Herb hit a home run in the eighth with two mates waiting on the paths.

Another feature of the game was a ball hit by a Mill batter when landed on Purdy's knee and bounced back to Krabbe, Tuttle Press catcher, who tossed the runner out at first base.

Batteries for the Mills were Herb and Radtke, for the Tuttle Press, Purdy and Krabbe.

Mad Pursuit
BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

SYNOPSIS: Nora Lake is a suicide victim's widow a few hours after she marries to escape from her troubled life as the motherless daughter of Julian Lake. She reproaches herself for not having sensed Nicholas Thayer's plan to jump from the ship's deck after the loveless marriage which gave her a claim on his money near Albanian station, there Nicholas' brother, Jonathon, meets her with a scarcely concealed contempt. He observes her dismay at finding her aunt, Emily Durant, her cousins, Frances, with two children, deserted by their father, and the crippled Hallie, living in such a wretched and unattractive Julian had pictured. The next day, Nora awaits the coming of Jonathon to take her to the old Thayer place.

CHAPTER 15
A FIDE WITH JON

DISPITE Jonathan's coldness, Nora did want Nicholas' people—Jonathan, has step-sister, Damon, and her father—to like her. "More than anything else in the world"—she had told Hallie, there in the attic room where she had spent her first night

Nora came over and stood beside Hallie, who was weeping down at her hands. She thought the crippled cousin of hers was very ugly, but she found something in the fact that interested her. It was not one of those faces which have nothing to say, but the lines, the pain, the laughter them Yet—more they are. And I think Fran has a new pair of silk stockings. Will this blouse fit you? Give me your skirt. I'll press it."

Nora began to dress again in Fran's white blouse with its round childish collar, to draw on Fran's silk stockings, and try on the gloves. Hallie came back with the skirt just as the bell rung.

"Oh Hallie, I'm not ready!"

She watched Hallie hobble from the room again, heard her cautious descent of the stairs. She was cold with nervousness; she could picture Jon and Hallie in the back parlor, Jon restless and impatient and Hallie observing him with her sardonic eyes.

wrinkles about the eyes were like the map of a strange country.

"Your hands are beautiful," Nora said when she saw Hallie had removed her scrutiny.

"But useless," Hallie said sardonically. "Here I am day after day letting the others work to support me. Mother giving music lessons in all kinds o' weather. Fran working all day in an office while I play watch dog at home." She sat frowning.

"But some day perhaps I will do something," she said with a kind of grim purpose.

When she was dressed Nora went downstairs. As she reached the last step, the door of the front parlor burst open, and the young doctor with his hat in his hand clutching a bag, with the barest nod to Nora, rushed out of his office.

"Someone must be dying!" Nora cried to Hallie.

"Don't worry. He's just showing the neighborhood how busy he is," Hallie explained, smiling, "he's not

When she was dressed she decided she had never looked worse. But she would show Jon Thayer that she thought nothing of his opinion. She might be poor, but she must never forget she was Julian Lake's daughter. Her heart beat thickly as she went toward the back parlor.

Jon was standing with an open book in his hands as Nora came in. "Are you feeling rested?" he asked indifferently.

He stood out against the background of the shabby room, young and vigorous. His deep-set eyes, neither green nor blue, looked on her. She saw his strong nose and insolent lips, and she wondered what his arrogance might conceal.

Nora turned to say good-by to Hallie as she went down the steps beside Jon to his car. He seemed anxious to hurry her away not because he wanted to learn about Nicholas but in order to get the order over.

Nora insisted on going down to get hissed the dog out of the yard. "He had a single patent—except Pette Baker, the dog who hurt his leg—since he's been here. But twice a day he takes his bag and rushes around the block at break-neck speed."

Nora insisted on going down to get hissed the dog out of the yard. "He had a single patent—except Pette Baker, the dog who hurt his leg—since he's been here. But twice a day he takes his bag and rushes around the block at break-neck speed."

her breakfast alone, though Italie offered to crawl down after her. The bathroom was off to the side of the dining room and kitchen. Nothing more dreary than this kitchen could be imagined, with its small barred window that looked out on the back yard.

A gas stove stood against one wall, the table centered the kitchen, and a glass-doored cupboard held rows of blue plates and cups. The kitchen table was scrubbed to a satiny whiteness and even the little stove by the wall had a black, gleaming surface.

Nora sat munching toast and drinking warmed-over coffee at the kitchen table. She could barely wait

"You couldn't drive too fast for me."

At last Jon turned into an old carriage drive that wound through popular trees toward the house. Far back on lawns that seemed to flow like green waves it stood on a rise of ground. The house was of a pale brick, set back on a slope of sand and wind to gray. Slender white pillars outlined the piazza. It was one of those old Dutch houses imbedded in its lands and fields and woods.

Jon said, as they climbed the stone steps, "You can see the river from here," as though she were waiting for a visitor who had come to see the view.

until the time Jon would come for her. She was eager to leave the little red brick house. Her own people could not give her security. They themselves were insecure; any day they might leave this dreary street and go to live somewhere else. She was sure that their lives would be interlocked nor that their loss was a stronghold against the world.

She heard the noon whistles blow and down the steps from the back yard two children came running. Alice came straight up to the kitchen table and observed Nora minutely.

"I like you," she pronounced after this scrutiny.

Four-year-old Dickie did not notice the newcomer. He was chasing a little white mouse.

The room to which Jon took her ran the full length of the house. The feeling that the house gave her of being grounded in tradition was centered here. The white wainscoting, the high ceilings and wide fireplace, the mellow old furniture covered in a design of birds and flowers gave the room an austere beauty. On the bookshelves and tables were bowls of white lilies.

She sat waiting for Damon, rigid with nervousness. This old house had made her feel like a tramp who had made her way in by mistake. She began to unwrap Nicholas' painting of the old peasant woman and when she looked up she saw Damon.

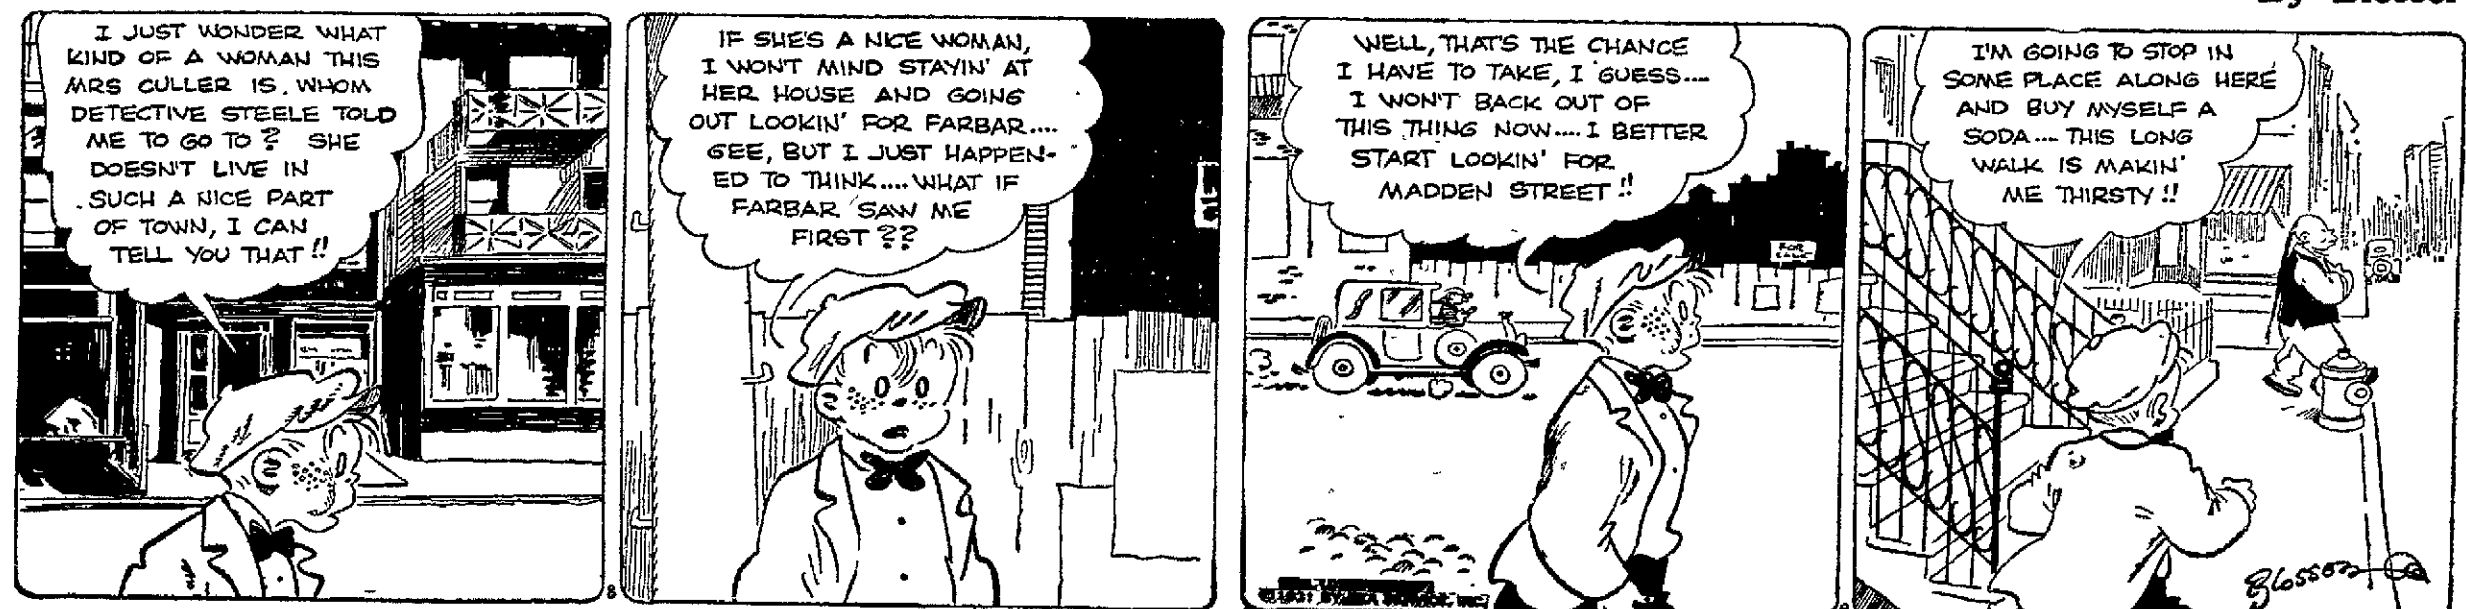

At last Dickie captured him and began to hug him lovingly while the dog bore it with an infinite wheezing patience.

CONDITION OF COMMODITIES AGAIN WORSE

New Low Quotations for Long Period of Years Being Registered

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright 1931 by Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York —(CPA)—
The static condition of the market for commodities, which in March gave the impression that stabilization had been effected, has been replaced with one where new low quotations for a long period of years are now being registered.

Wednesday copper metal touched 9 cents a pound, a figure that has not been duplicated in 35 years. This week zinc has been offered at 3.25 cents a pound, or the lowest since the end of the last century. The weekly iron and steel trade reviews Wednesday stated that melting scrap steel at Pittsburgh and Chicago is down to $10.33 a ton, which means that it has dropped into a price area lower than any since the early part of 1915. There has also been a decline in the last few days in finished steel, after it had held steady for the past six weeks, compelling fabricators to sell their product for less money than they have received for it since May, 1922.

Cotton has been selling lately at the lowest prices since 1915. On the other hand, the market for wheat has acted more satisfactorily to holders of the grain than for some time. There are other farm products that have suggested, in their movements that the end of the long decline in them was approaching.

They have had little influence, however, in relieving the main body of commodities from the effect of steadily shrinking prices in petroleum, hides, silk and rubber.

Decline Is Sharp
This week's decline in the Fisher commodity index is one of the sharpest of the year, following the largest decline in April since the month of January. In the latter month the Fisher index stood at 77.7, from which it has dropped to 73.1. This average compares with 96.8 in 1929 and is 27 per cent under the average for 1928. The purchasing power of the dollar, based on the commodity decline, has risen from 3.9 at about the time in 1929 that Wall Street began to realize that there had been a turn in the tide of business, to nearly 87 per cent coincident with a break in common stocks to the lowest level since 1926. Those who find necessity for a readjustment in wages in order to bring about an improvement in business, cite this remarkable gain in the purchasing power of the dollar as one of the compensations available to those whose salaries or wages have been, or may be, scaled down.

The decline in commodities of 3 per cent in April brings the current average to the lowest since 1916. Another break of 8 points will reduce it to the lowest level since 1915, or to the vicinity of the pre-war average. The character of the depression in 1920-21 was the tremendous shrinkage in the value of commodities that had been inflated both during and immediately following the war.

Fall Less Sharp
Between May 1, 1920, and the same date in 1921, the average of commodities fell 105 points, or 40 per cent. From March 1, 1929, which, according to some records dates the beginning of the trade recession, to May 1, this year, the fall in commodity prices was only 45 points, or less than 25 per cent. The general average of commodities at present is 10 points lower than at the bottom of the depression in the summer of 1921.

However, there has been a more prolonged and extensive shrinkage in the average prices of securities since September, 1929, than that which took place in 1920-21 as a secondary phase of a depression that developed out of inflation in and overproduction of commodities.

Latest reports of the trend of commodity prices abroad indicate another downward movement in many countries similar to that in the United States, following the hesitation in March, with the suggestion then that stabilization was being effected. This condition is among those giving most anxiety to foreign delegates to the international chamber of commerce convention now meeting in Washington. The only specific recommendation has to do with the stabilization of the price of silver. This apparently has taken place naturally around a level several cents above the low figure reached earlier in the year.

Building Permits
Five building permits were issued Wednesday by John N. Welland, building inspector. They were granted to Henry Lietzen, 203 N. Mason-st., glass porch, cost $200; Fremont Johnson, 331 West-ave., addition to shed, cost $50; Eli Jandrin, 1018 W. Oklahoma-st., two-car garage, cost $100; George Ruth, 105 E. Franklin-st., garage and service station, cost $9,000; and John C. Lamm, 802 W. Oklahoma-st., garage and move residence, cost $1,500.

TEXANS OBJECT TO CUT FREIGHT RATE ON GRAIN

Shippers Say New Schedule Would Give Advantages to Kansas City

Chicago —(P)— Texas grain shippers object to the new freight rate schedule promulgated by the Interstate Commerce commission because they believe it gives advantages to shippers of the Kansas City region, it was brought out Thursday in the injunction hearing in U. S. district court.

Frank A. Lettingwell of Dallas, representing the Terminal Grain company of Fort Worth, which has a separate suit pending against the commission, asked leave to consolidate this action with the railways' injunction suit now on trial.

He said the differentials between grain shipping rates in his territory and the Kansas City territory would give advantages to the latter which they do not now enjoy. Judge Walter C. Lindley interposed a question.

"Do you mean that Texas men want this injunction and Kansas City men do not?"

"Yes," replied Lettingwell. Counsel for the government entered an objection to consolidation of the Texas case with that of the railroads, and argued that the Terminal Grain company had no right to file a separate suit but should come into the railway injunction proceedings as an intervenor.

The court, three federal judges sitting en banc, reserved judgment on the Texas petition.

A request for a week's continuance was denied Ralph Merrian, attorney for the Kansas City Board of Trade. Merrian asked the recess in order to study the arguments advanced yesterday by Frederick Wood, counsel for the 72 railroads seeking to block the reduced grain rates announced for June 1. The railroads must post the rates May 15.

The court pointed out to Mr. Merrian that it concedes nothing to the petitioning railroads and that the present proceedings will not determine finally the rates, since only a temporary injunction is under consideration. The court also pointed out that the government had not asked a continuance, and the hearing went on with the attorneys for the Interstate Commerce commission opening their arguments.

Mrs. Albert Konath and Mrs. Ralph Hanly, Sullivante, Minn., are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Draeger, W. College-ave.

PATENTED PROCESS BRINGS OUT FINER FLAVOR IN COFFEE

Controlled Roasting Gives Hills Bros. Coffee Flavor No Other Coffee Has

As everybody knows, the flavor of coffee varies according to the way it is brewed. Especially disappointing is the result when coffee stays on the fire too long or is taken off too soon.

Similar unsatisfactory results can occur in the roasting of coffee. If the blend is roasted too long or not enough there is a noticeable difference in flavor between the two lots. Even with watchful care such variation is exceedingly difficult to prevent when coffee is roasted in large quantities.

Realizing this, Hills Bros. originated and patented a continuous process which roasts coffee a few pounds at a time, instead of in bulk. The quantity of coffee passing into the roaster does not vary. The speed of operation and the temperature remain the same with the result that Hills Bros. Coffee is absolutely uniform and has a flavor no other coffee has.

Hills Bros. Coffee never "goes stale" because it is packed in vacuum. By this process air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is taken from the can and kept out. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, do not keep coffee fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can. Sold by grocers everywhere.

Hills Bros. Coffee, Inc., Chicago, Illinois.

ASKS $5,000,000 FUND FOR BUILDING PROGRAM

Madison —(CP)— Appropriation of $5,000,000 from the state general fund on July 1 for an emergency unemployment construction program is advocated in the state senate yesterday in an amendment introduced by Sen. Walter S. Goodland, Racine.

The Goodland measure, in the form of a substitute amendment to the Fens bill which was killed and then revived by the senate, provides for a one-third increase in the state income tax on individuals and corporations to reimburse the state general fund for the money taken from it.

The amendment, like the original bill of Sen. Leonard C. Fens, Milwaukee, which provided a $6,000,000 construction fund, gives to the counties the task of carrying out the proposed building program. The Goodland amendment, however, distributes the fund to the counties on two basis, 60 per cent on the amount of income tax paid last year, and 40 per cent on population. Distribution under the Fens bill was on the basis of income tax paid alone.

Sen. Fens also offered a substitute amendment to his bill. Provisions contained in the amendment are similar to the previous proposals. The measure appropriated $6,000,000 to be raised by a two-fifths increase in normal income tax rates which is to be expended from May to December of this year.

RAPS CHAPPLE IN ANSWER TO HIS CHARGES

Mauther Issues Statement to Refute Allegations
Made by Editor

Fond du Lac, Wis. (P)—In a statement Thursday, Wm. Mauther, state conservation commission chairman, said John B. Chapple, managing editor of the Ashland Daily Press, at Madison yesterday voluntarily told him he (Chapple) had found he was wrong in making statements derogatory to the commission at the recent intercounty association meeting for conservation at Ashland.

"Expecting he would attack the conservation commission as he had done at Ashland," said Mr. Mauther, "I was prepared to answer him, but inasmuch as he had promised he would make no repetition of his attacks and kept his promise so far as his public statement was concerned, I made no answer to his previous charges against the commission. It appears that Mr. Chapple, for some reason not entirely clear, is more concerned about getting sensational publicity for himself than anything else, and is willing even to injure the northern territory and hamper efforts to secure adequate fire protection for Wisconsin's forests if he can be assured that he will be in the limelight.

"From his statements at the Ashland meeting it was clear that his criticism of the conservation commission had its basis in the fact that the commission is unwilling to hide the fact that northern power companies are carrying on their development and use of water powers in a manner that is unnecessarily destructive to fish. Mr. Chapple knows perfectly well that the present administration of Wisconsin is not responsible for the fact that the north does not have adequate fire protection. He knows that even had the legislature of 1931 appropriated $10,000,000 for fire protection and suppression with approval of the present governor, not a cent of the money could have been available for use prior to April 1, 1932. He knows that the conservation commission has made good use of such monies as were available for fire protection.

"This Mr. Chapple of Ashland is the same Mr. Chapple who flew over the northern forest areas with Walter Kohler, then governor of Wisconsin, two years ago when the 1929 legislature was in session.

"The conservation commission at that time had on file with the governor and the 1929 legislature a request for levy of such a mill tax as would make $1,000,000 available annually for forest purposes, largely for fire protection and suppression. At the recommendation of Governor Kohler, perhaps with the advice but certainly with the tacit consent of Mr. Chapple, the legislature gave the conservation commission less than one-fourth of the appropriation requested and desperately needed.

"A mill tax of one-twentieth of one mill was levied, giving the commission $298,000 with which to protect 10,000,000 acres of forest lands from fire hazards, suppress such fires as broke out, and carry on all other activities of the commission forestry for 21 months.

"If any one administration of any one legislature is to blame for the failure to provide sufficient money to protect the north against fires in 1930 and 1931 it was the Kohler administration, championed by Mr. Chapple, and the legislature of 1929."

Mrs. Paul C. Wilke has returned from Milwaukee, where she visited her husband at the National Military home. Mr. Wilke, who submitted to an operation, is improving, but will be confined to the hospital for some time.

NEEDY FARMERS SOON WILL GET FEDERAL LOANS

Application Blanks Forwarded to County Agent in Drought Area

BY FRANK J. WELER
(Associated Press Farm Editor)

Washington — (P) — Application blanks for loans from the $45,000,000 federal feed, seed and fertilizer fund have been forwarded to county agricultural agents in the 1930 drought and storm area. They are to be issued only to those farmers who suffered material damage and who have no other source of credit.

Each applicant will sign a note for the loan he desires, and at the same time, in most states, give a mortgage on his 1931 crop to secure its repayment.

Need Determines Amount

The extent to which the applicant incurred damages from drought or storms during the last season will be the principal basis on which his eligibility for a loan will be determined.

He will agree to use the loan for the purchase of seed, fertilizer, feed for work stock and fuel and oil for tractors. No provision is made for the use of loans to purchase human foods.

When the applicant has completed his application, note and mortgage, the papers will be turned over to the county advisory committee, consisting of a leading banker and two prominent farmers who serve without pay.

They will determine whether the applicant has the necessary power and machinery to produce the crops he proposes to plant, what his reputation is as a farmer, and whether he can be expected to use his best efforts to produce a crop and repay the loan.

They then will make a definite recommendation to the department of agriculture field office which disburses the loans.

The field office will examine the papers promptly and determine the amount of the loan. This will be based on needs of the individual for seed and fertilizer for the acreage and crops he proposes to plant, and for feed for work stock necessary to produce the crops. Loans may be approved for an amount less than that requested by the applicant.
